SYNGMAN RHEE'S FALL

PEKING (Reuters) — Some 600,000 Chinese gathered in a square before Peking's gate of Heavenly Peace today for a demonstration in support of the overthrow of Syngman Rhee's South Korean regime.

"American imperialism out of Korea" was among the slogans shouted by the banner-waving crowds. (See page 3.)

Students Riot in Turkey;
Gov't Orders Martial LawYouths Hail
Korea Action

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Thousands of students rioted against the government today in the streets of Istanbul and Ankara and the government imposed martial law to prevent another Korea.

Three students were reported killed in Istanbul and scores wounded when police fired into their midst after tear gas, warning rifle volleys and charges by mounted police failed to break up the demonstrations.

The crowds retaliated by stoning police and several were reported injured, three seriously.

The rioting quickly spread to Ankara, the nation's capital, and there were demands that Premier Adnan Menderes resign. He cancelled a trip to a conference in Tehran because of the crisis.

The fighting in Istanbul started at Istanbul University and spread to Beyazit Square where mounted police moved in on the students only to be met by cunning and more violence.

Many youths surged forward and poked lighted cigarettes into the horses' flanks, causing many animals to plunge and rear. Some horses bolted, throwing their police riders to the ground.

One of the mounted officers who fell after being hit by a stone was trampled by the mob and injured seriously.

The police were armed with pistols and tommyguns but eyewitnesses said they held their fire until the students began stoning and trampling them.

There were cries of "Freedom! Freedom!" and "Murderous police!" Others screamed:

"Menderes resign!" "Government resign!"

The students also shouted slogans of approval for Korean youth who died in riots which led to the resignation of President Syngman Rhee. The demonstration started as a protest against new government laws giving unprecedented powers to parliamentary committees.

Diefenbaker Steps Softly
In Debate on Apartheid

DETECTIVES START PROBE

Soccer Scandal Hits
U.K.; Games Fixed?

LONDON (AP)—British sports fans, already scandalized by a doping conspiracy on the horse race tracks, today got another shock as police probed allegations of "fixed" matches in the English Soccer League.

Detectives talked to five players of Oldham Athletic, English League team, about alleged conversations on "throwing" games.

"I was told by some players about conversations concerning the outcome of matches," Oldham manager Norman Dodgin said. "I immediately informed the police."

A police spokesman said a dossier on the whole matter was being prepared. "It is still under review and inquiries are proceeding," the police added.

Oldham Athletic is at the bottom of the Fourth Division in the league and must apply for re-election to the league next season. Clubs vote to decide whether the bottom team in the division stays in the competition.

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, backed solidly by Parliament Wednesday in his avowed hatred of racial discrimination, leaves today for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London and the inevitable discussion of South Africa's apartheid policy.

He goes, he said, with the belief that racial discrimination is the forerunner of tyranny and the forerunner of ultimate change by force.

He said Canada and the other Commonwealth governments should approach the South African situation by exercising "an influence of moderation" and by revealing steadiness and restraint.

"I could do the popular thing," he told the Commons. "I could denounce. I could follow the course of least resistance. But denunciation of what I hate would not achieve what we desire should be achieved—the ending of a policy that cannot succeed."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he has no doubt that the apartheid policy and its repercussions in South Africa will be included in the informal discussions at the London conference, opening May 3.

He added: "One of the greatest hopes I have for an ultimate settlement is that South Africa has not withdrawn itself from the Commonwealth and the fact that it will be represented in London at the prime ministers' conference."

"This assures that the channels of informal communication have not been closed."

Mr. Diefenbaker also leaves Ottawa after hearing the contention of Opposition Leader Pearson that South Africa "may drive herself out of the Commonwealth by forcing a choice between her policies and the views of other members."

There must be a change in South African policy "or the events of recent weeks will be nothing to what will happen in the months ahead," Mr. Pearson said. "There are deep dark forces at work which may soon sweep away the chances of any settlement based on reason and justice."

Mr. Diefenbaker's own stand for a moderate approach to the South African situation was underlined by External Affairs Minister Green, who also leaves Ottawa today to attend a meeting of the NATO Council in Istanbul.

"It is not the Canadian way to go to extremes of one kind or another," Mr. Green said. "The reputation we have among nations of the world is a reputation for a cool-headed attitude, and not for rushing off after this mirage or after another mirage and getting all excited and making fantastic statements."

At the time, Mr. Green was replying mostly to CCF criticisms that Canada had not been outspoken enough on the South African situation. Previously, CCF House Leader Hazen Argue had called for a formal diplomatic protest and a Canadian boycott on South African goods.

'Villainous and Perilous'—Winch

The socialist party's position in the Commons Wednesday was no less vigorous in its condemnation of apartheid but, as expressed by Harold Winch (CCF, Vancouver East) in Mr. Argue's absence, it contained few of the arguments advanced earlier.

Mr. Winch described apartheid as "not only villainous but perilous." It was tantamount to dictatorship. He called on Europeans in South Africa to "recognize the insatiable of apartheid and the need to come to terms with the situation by being prepared to negotiate with the African leaders and not to jail them."

"The apartheid policy cannot be made to work without poisoning the whole continent of Africa and without causing a violent upheaval which could endanger the whole world."

Mr. Diefenbaker, last speaker in the debate, said that after hearing all party representations.

KIRBY FUND
PASSES $5,000

Citizens' donations to Mrs. Dorothy Kirby, widow of Saanich Cons. Robert Kirby, soared over $5,000 today and were still coming in strong.

The officer was shot by a mental patient during a hunt for the man Sunday night and was buried with full police honors Wednesday. (See page 30.)

Money given by sympathetic citizens of Greater Victoria will supplement a $5,000 insurance policy and $250 monthly pension from Workmen's Compensation Board to provide for Mrs. Kirby and four small children.

Little League Baseball officials announced that all proceeds from Sunday games at Little League Park and Layriss Park would be donated to the fund.

Students of Royal Oak High School have volunteered to take a collection for the fund, and a special benefit day Saturday is planned by Nick Grabas, of Island View Beach resort, site of go-cart racing.

Proceeds from the event and from a Sunday draw on a go-cart will be given to Mrs. Kirby.

Wednesday afternoon, seven young friends of the dead policeman sold flowers at four cents bunch from a roadside stand on Derby. They turned $3 over to the fund.

The children were Virginia Milligan, eight; Deborah Mason, seven; Diana Pearce, seven; John Graham, six; Derek Mason, five; Robbie Pearce, five, and Jim MacKay, seven.

B.C. LABOR APPEAL

Unemployed Aid
Urged on Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor (CLC) announced today it has requested the federal government to take emergency measures to help unemployed workers and their families in the province.

Releasing a brief presented Wednesday to Labor Minister Starr, the 130,000-member federation called for a moratorium on all mortgage debts of the unemployed and urged an immediate federal program of public works.

The brief also urged education and restraining of excess or unskilled workers; continuation of unemployment benefits during the whole period of a workers' unemployment; and federal establishment of minimum rates of social assistance payments.

"Our provincial government optimistically refuses to acknowledge its 100,000 unemployed citizens," continued the brief. "Many people are losing their homes and many more are living in sub-standard conditions."

There had been a chronic state of unemployment for the last three years in B.C., and the situation was especially serious on the lower mainland.

"B.C. with its few basic export industries, is the worst example of increasing production growth with less than adequate employment growth."

SPECIAL TIMES FEATURE

The Story Behind South Africa

In this, the second of four articles on South Africa, a veteran AP foreign correspondent recalls the days of the discovery of gold and of the Boer War.

BY LYNN HEINZERLING JOHANNESBURG (AP)—South Africa is celebrating 50 years of union this year but only a fifth of the population has anything to celebrate.

Three million whites can look around them and see a nation pulsating with economic vigor, abounding in gold, diamonds, coal and a black labor force to mine them.

But looking out from their drab and strictly segregated surroundings 12,000,000 Negroes, Indians and colored peoples of mixed races see constant discrimination and no future.

Fifty years of union for them has meant an improved literacy rate and a gradual move toward the white man's civilization. But with these have come stricter segregation and tighter controls on movement.

TRADITIONAL KRAALS—Slightly more than a third of the 10,000,000 Negroes live in their traditional kraals in reserves, another third on the farms of white farmers, the remainder in shabby and rigidly demarcated townships around the cities and towns.

The white man's anniversary picture is marked with deep shadows. African nationalism, rolling down the continent from the north, finally has touched this bastion of white supremacy.

The Union of South Africa became a reality in 1910. It joined the two British colonies of Cape Province and Natal with two Boer republics, Orange Free State and Transvaal. That followed more than a century of uneasy rivalry between British and Dutch settlers which finally exploded in the Boer War, 1899-1902.

This was a bitter struggle in the veldt. It left a legacy of hate and suspicion which the Boers, or Afrikaners, never have been able to suppress completely. They still talk of the concentration camps erected by the British for Boer prisoners. They tell of farms burned and cattle slaughtered needlessly.

And now with Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd recovering from two bullet wounds inflicted by an assassin of English descent, there is one more black mark in the book.

Broadly, the causes of the Boer War lay in huge gold deposits discovered in the Transvaal near the close of the 19th century, and in British determination to unify the sprawling, unwieldy administrations of the two British colonies and the Boer republics.

The discovery of gold on the Witwatersrand (White Water Ridge) brought hordes of eager Britons and foreigners into the Transvaal, dominated by Paul Kruger, president of the South African Republic as it was known then.

His republic's pastoral economy was being disturbed. The gold mines were becoming the focus of British and international finance. Kruger recognized the danger to his republic and took drastic restrictive measures.

When peace came, the treaty contained no safeguard for the overwhelming black masses in the country. In fact, the British backed away from the relative leniency they had taken toward Negroes in the Cape colony. They promised there would be no change in the political status of Africans before the Boer republic achieved self government.

TOO LATE—When self government came the racialists were again in power and it was too late. A "whites only" parliament was assured.

Out of their despair, a few politically-minded Boers formed a South African native congress in January 1912. It became the African National Congress.

Now, in the golden anniversary year of the union, it has been outlawed for planning "a massive revolt."

DEAN FREED
IN SLAYING

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—George Mickey, former Louisiana State University dean, was a free man today, but he was a teacher without a school.

District Attorney J. St. Clair Favrot Wednesday withdrew a murder warrant that charged the 50-year-old scientist with the bludgeoning slaying of Dr. Margaret Rosamond McMillan, a woman faculty member.

The district attorney's action came shortly after it was disclosed Mickey had voluntarily resigned from the LSU faculty.

University President Troy Middleton had relieved Mickey of his duties as dean after he was jailed. Later the geneticist was demoted to a professorship but kept on the payroll.

Employees
'Intimidated'
By Banks

MONTREAL (CP) — Tom Gooderham of Vancouver said Wednesday in a letter to Labor Minister Starr that British Columbia chartered bank employees are being subjected to "intimidation and interference" by their employers.

Mr. Gooderham, regional director of organization for the Canadian Labor Congress and co-chairman of the bank employees' organizing committee, asked Mr. Starr for public assurance of the rights of association and collective bargaining.

He said the latest attempt by bank employees to form their own association and bargain collectively has been centred in the province of British Columbia and has met with "the most blatant violations of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act."

Canada Seeks More Farmers
From Europe

OTTAWA (CP) — A novel plan has been adopted by the immigration department to stimulate the movement to Canada of qualified farmers from The Netherlands, Belgium and France.

Departmental officials hope the plan will reverse a steady decline in recent years in the number of farm settlers coming to this country and help meet a growing demand in Canada for skilled farm help.

Under the scheme, sons of farmers in The Netherlands, Belgium and France are being offered an opportunity to come to Canada for periods of up to nine months to work on Canadian farms. Financial assistance for transportation is provided by authorities in their own countries.

WILL LEARN CONDITIONS

The department says the young farmers will have a chance to familiarize themselves with agriculture conditions in this country and learn of opportunities to become established on farms of their own.

After their return home they would be expected to talk with their friends and farm organizations about farming in Canada.

It is hoped many will later decide to emigrate to Canada, accompanied by others who have heard their stories.

tives express their views "we will all be reinforced in the sure knowledge that there are no divisions of opinion on this matter."

He agreed with Mr. Pearson's contention that wherever discrimination takes place it leads to disaster.

"We say we cannot win a nuclear war, that no nation can win it," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "Equally so, no nation today can win a race war within or without its territories."

"Our responsibility every where within the Commonwealth is to make the Commonwealth a bridge based on tolerance which will bring to the whites, the blacks, and all the other colors that are represented in this Commonwealth, equality through moderation."

Mr. Diefenbaker said no country has a perfect record in this field. "None of us can speak without sin on this subject." However, repression as an alternative to progress toward racial equality could never be accepted.

At the end of the debate, Mr. Pearson asked whether the last four paragraphs of his speech could be put forward as a private member's resolution and be passed by the Commons.

Mr. Diefenbaker said he had made inquiries and found that this could not be done under the circumstances.

Mr. Pearson summarized his views in this way:

"We deplore and protest against the policy of apartheid of the government of South Africa under which persons, because of race and color, are denied by law human rights and fundamental freedoms."

"We have watched, with anxiety and dismay, this policy lead to arbitrary arrests and detentions without trials; to unrest and violence."

"We believe that its continuance seriously threatens those relations of confidence and friendship which are necessary for any continued and constructive association between members of the Commonwealth."

"We are convinced that peace and order in any country can, in the long run, be secured and maintained only on the basis of freedom and non-discrimination; and on full respect for the dignity and worth of all men whatever their race, color or creed."

The public galleries were about half full as the debate got under way, but the number of spectators steadily declined as the debate progressed. At the height of the debate about half of the 264 MPs were in their seats.

Top Rhee Aide Suicides With Family in Shame

LEE KI-POONG
... atonement

By GENE KRAMER
SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Lee Ki-Poong, his wife and two sons committed suicide today in Oriental atonement for the revolt touched off by Lee's election as South Korea's vice-president.

Ten hours after Lee and his family died in a cottage on the grounds of the presidential mansion, ex-president Syngman Rhee left the president's house 100 yards away and was driven with his Austrian-born wife to a modest hillside villa where they took up life as private citizens.

Sentimental, friendly crowds along Rhee's route applauded him and women wept, in sharp contrast to the bloody rioting which forced the 55-year-old leader to end his 12-year rule over South Korea.

The old man waved and smiled occasionally to the crowds.

Rhee's successor, acting president Huh Chung, worked to complete a cabinet to aid him in the task of erasing Rhee's near-dictatorial system of rule and preparing for election of a new cabinet and vice-president within three months.

Chung named six independents to the cabinet, bringing the new government to nine members. All politically independent, they include a noted surgeon, an educationist and two bankers.

Still vacant is the key post of minister of defence, as well as the agriculture and communications ministries.

Four more members of the National Assembly, all members of Rhee's Liberal party, resigned today. The assembly had demanded that they quit, charging they were involved in election rigging.

In one of its first official acts, Huh's new government issued a warrant for the arrest of former home minister Choi In-Kyu and six others charged with responsibility for irregularities in the March 15 elections which named Rhee to a fourth term and Lee Ki-poong to the vice-presidency.

Charges of fraud, intimidation and police brutality during the election set off six weeks of revolt that overthrew the Rhee regime.

Others whose arrests were ordered were Lee Kang-hak, former director of the hated national police under Choi, and Han Hi-suk, Rhee's campaign manager.

The death of Lee and his family was announced by the army command, which still is in charge of maintaining order in Seoul and other major cities under martial law.

The announcement said the 64-year-old vice-president-elect, his wife, Maria Park Lee, 32; and their sons, Lieut. Lee Kang-suk, 22, and Lee Kang-uk, 19, committed suicide at the home of a member of the president's secretarial staff, a friend of Mrs. Lee.

The announcement gave no details, but it was understood that the elder son—whom Rhee and his childless wife had adopted—shot his parents and his brother and then turned the gun on himself.

PROTECT BODIES

The bodies were moved to the Metropolitan Army Hospital, where barbed wire barricades were put up, apparently in fear that the crowds which sacked Lee's home Tuesday would try to wreak vengeance on the bodies. But no such attempt was made. Lee and his family had been in hiding since the rioting resumed in Seoul Monday night.

The American-educated Lee had lived his political life in the shadow of Rhee, the man he idolized. He served as the aged leader's closest aide, friend and hatchet man, and was his choice to succeed him in the presidency.

Canada Gives $15 Million To Pakistan

OTTAWA (CP)—A $15,000,000 Colombo Plan contribution to Pakistan this year by Canada was announced Wednesday in the Commons by External Affairs Minister Green.

He said the funds will be used for commodities and equipment to help in Pakistan's economic development program.

The money will be spent in the following manner:

- $3,730,000 for industrial metals such as tin plate, aluminum, steel and sheet metals.
- $3,650,000 for wheat to relieve food shortages.
- $3,010,000 for fertilizers to help increase Pakistan's agricultural production.
- $60,000 for economic and engineering studies of capital projects on which Pakistan has requested Canada's help.
- $4,550,000 for special capital projects now being considered by the two governments.

Mr. Green said that with regard to the gift of wheat Pakistan will set aside an equivalent amount of money to finance regular Colombo Plan development projects.

MONTREAL (CP) — Giuseppe (Pepe) Cotroni, 39, Montreal restaurateur, was convicted Tuesday of illegal possession of $9,700 worth of bonds stolen in the Brockville, Ont., Trust and Savings Company robbery in May, 1958. Sentence will be passed May 6.

Nixon Is Stand-In For Ike at Summit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Vice-President Richard M. Nixon will become the American representative at next month's Paris summit conference if "domestic requirements" force President Eisenhower to return home, the White House said Tuesday.

Nixon's presence at the meeting with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev and other world leaders could prove to be a big boost or a big setback to his presidential election chances, depending on the outcome of the summit meeting.

Key congressional Democrats promptly raised the question of the effects of the White House announcement on the political situation.

The White House said in a brief statement that Eisenhower was scheduled to visit Portugal seven days after the summit meeting opens May 16. If the meeting is still underway after his two-day visit, he may return to Paris or be succeeded there by Nixon if forced to return to the United States by "domestic requirements."

Tough Pre-Summit Talk

WITH HIS LATEST LOUD threat to the Western allies, that they must reach agreement with Russia on a German peace settlement or lose all access to Berlin, Premier Khrushchev has set the international alarm bells jangling again on the eve of the summit.

The Soviet leader has never withdrawn his warning that Russia intends to give East Germany independent status. This move would mean that the West must deal directly with the East German regime on matters affecting Berlin, and that would entail recognition of the Government, which the West refuses. But following the Camp David talks, Mr. Khrushchev abandoned the deadline he had previously set, and left the whole matter as a question which must ultimately be answered but not under threat.

Since the easing of tension that followed his visit to the United States, Mr. Khrushchev has made numerous alarming statements regarding Berlin and the West's contact with it—a contact which is guaranteed by postwar agreements between the powers concerned. The latest threat is clear and unmistakable in its meaning; but what is its intent?

Does Mr. Khrushchev mean it when he says that unless the West comes to agreement with Russia it will "forfeit the right of access to West Berlin by land, water or air"? Surely he has received adequate assurance that this could lead to the use of armed force.

Or are his periodic statements merely intended to needle the West into some untoward act, or cause dissension among the allies? Does his mind flick back and forth, so that these statements are not just contrived for political ends but actually reflect his temporary thoughts at the time they are voiced?

No one can know. The answer is the prime problem of international affairs today. When will it be revealed?

The Tantalizing Failure

IT IS A TRAGIC AND TANTALIZING failure indeed when an international agreement on territorial waters is defeated by a single vote.

Presumably the nations will now revert to what Mr. Howard Green has called "anarchy" in the control of fishing grounds. The so-called fishery war between British trawlers and the Government of Iceland will be resumed. Various small countries will claim control of the sea off their coasts to any distance they happen to favor.

A Long, Useful Life

THE OLDER PEOPLE OF VICTORIA must have noted with pleasure the other day that Mr. George Pearson had reached his eightieth year, his mind as active as ever, his view on public affairs free of all bitterness, as they always were.

It must have been a pleasure for him also to realize that his great work for British Columbia has not been forgotten in the march of politics. We doubt that any public man of this generation did more for his province than Mr. Pearson,

Lesson From the Foothills

THE CITY OF LETHBRIDGE, not without some problems, is laying plans for construction of a $512,000 cultural centre. The 500-seat auditorium will be paid for from three sources: a private bequest of $175,000, a provincial grant of $237,000 under a five-year recreational program, and $100,000 to be borrowed by the city.

This is a project of particular interest to Greater Victoria which, with four times the population of Lethbridge, is still much farther removed from ownership of an auditorium. Admittedly Lethbridge has

Those English Girls

BUSINESS EXECUTIVES IN New York State, once a battlefield of the American Revolution, have a weakness for English girls, in a strict business sense, of course. They seem to think that smart young ladies from England are often more efficient as secretaries than the New York natives, speak better English and add tone to any office.

Perhaps they do but the laws of New York take no account of that possibility. The new York Commission Against Discrimination has

The current stalemate and bankruptcy of the disarmament and nuclear test ban conferences after encouraging indications of progress, seem to indicate Mr. Khrushchev may be saving his real negotiations for the summit meeting.

There has been a long softening-up period since the Soviet leader presented the West with a Berlin crisis eighteen months ago. There have been many important talks since then, including private conversations between President Eisenhower and Mr. Khrushchev, President de Gaulle and Mr. Khrushchev, and others.

Much of the talk has been devoted to ironing out disagreement within the Western camp, not only on how to meet Mr. Khrushchev's challenge but on the whole question of German reunification.

It is not yet entirely clear how far the West would go in fighting a move to bust it from Berlin. The commitment to remain is plain, but it is unlikely, to say the least, that either side intends to fight a war for Berlin.

Much more certain is the fact that the nations will not fight a war over the question of German reunification. Reunification is something of which all parties are verbally in favor, but the impression is becoming increasingly clear that both East and West—and even the two Germans themselves—are basically content to continue the present division.

Mr. Khrushchev's periodical sword rattlings thus become more difficult to understand. They provide a poor prelude to the Summit, from which Russia could gain much in a less tense atmosphere. The question then arises: does Mr. Khrushchev really wish to achieve anything at the top-level conference which he has been advocating for so long?

The world will demand something more than propaganda and whimsy from Russia's leader, and the day may come when the Russians will too.

Another brave attempt to bring law and order into the affairs of nations has collapsed, despite the strong effort of men like Canada's Mr. George Drew.

But agreement by a two-thirds vote was so near at the recent conference that the task should not be abandoned. There is good hope that, after they have time to think it over, the maritime nations will see the folly of the present situation and agree to cure it. The second conference made much more progress than the first. A third, later on, should succeed.

none who did so much for the poor and unfortunate.

He was the major architect of much of our social legislation, he was our greatest minister of labor, and though he served loyally in various governments, he was essentially an independent thinker with little interest in partisan affairs but a burning interest in the welfare of the common man.

To him the common man owes a great debt and will be happy to hear that he enjoys the sunset years of a fine and useful life.

had access to funds not at present available here. But the key point is that the Alberta community has set its goal and is moving steadily towards it.

In Victoria we have an excellent committee now at work on plans for an auditorium. But things are very much in the preliminary stage and the body of favorable public opinion, without which no plan can succeed, must still be recruited and activated.

Calgary, Edmonton, Vancouver and now Lethbridge—the capital city of British Columbia should be next.

ruled that it is illegal for any business concern to advertise that it wants English help. No New York company may "specify race, creed, color or national origin" in hiring its employees.

The purpose of this law is admirable—the prevention of racial or other discrimination. But there is no law to prevent an executive hiring any English girl if she applies for the job and apparently a good many of them are applying, and getting the job, too, on their merits.

Looking for a Defence Policy

LOOSE ENDS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Strictly According to Marx

MR. Herbert Hoover complains that Marxian ideas are more and more infiltrating the policies of the United States. Whether that be true or not, a Canadian who observes our Government's policy toward Japan must conclude that Ottawa already is deeply infiltrated by the ideas of Marx—not Karl, of course, but Groucho and his brothers.

Only the four Marx boys, in their better moments, could have conceived a plan by which Canada simultaneously subsidizes exports to Japan and then restricts Japanese imports, thereby managing to achieve a loss for Canadians both coming and going. This is not Karl's version of human tragedy but one of Groucho's wildest flights of slapstick comedy.

IN a long, fascinating scenario which any Hollywood gag writer might envy, the latest custard pie to be thrown at the Japanese is another of those "voluntary" import quotas devised in Ottawa and enforced in Tokyo. Japan will now reduce its exports of rubber footwear to Canada, as it has already reduced textiles, flatware and plywood, thus limiting the available supply of cheap goods in Canada and restricting the nation's real wealth.

All these arrangements, of course, violate the whole spirit of the GATT contract, the foundation of Canada's commerce, but the Japanese are too polite to mention that fact, and too frightened of still further violations. Besides, Mr. Churchill has frequently assured us that only Liberal propagandists would think the Government capable of damaging GATT in any way apart, of course, from twisting it out of joint.

SO far one may question the wisdom of official Canadian thinking but at least it is quite understandable—the Government is moving back to a protectionist policy wherever it can do so without too much risk of retaliation. The next step, however, passeth understanding, except in the higher Marxian fantasy of Hollywood.

The thing is largely forgotten but we are indirectly reminded by a recent court case that the Government of Canada pays a freight subsidy of $450 a ton on coal moved from the Crow's Nest Pass to Vancouver for shipment to Japan.

That is to say, the Canadian taxpayers subsidize the Japanese iron industry to use their fuel. When the Japanese offer to pay this artificially low price with sales of their own products in Canada, they are indignantly told that their exports are too cheap.

WE are all against cheap goods in Canada unless we produce them ourselves, at the taxpayer's expense. We give away our money but we won't take it back, in the form of an equivalent amount of useful goods, if we can help it. In his catalogue of capitalistic contradictions even Karl never thought of such a charming whimsy.

But there is still more to it. While the Government at Ottawa is paying the Crow's Nest miners to dig coal for Japan, the Government at Victoria is trying just as earnestly to prevent miners on the Pacific coast from digging iron ore for Japan. Mines exporting this ore must pay a high provincial tax candidly designed to "discourage exports."

Recently two mining companies launched a legal appeal against the assessment of this tax and the British Columbia Supreme Court reduced it. The tax itself remains though its intent, if not its letter, obviously interferes with the federal Government's exclusive control of international trade.

THE paradox also remains—a nation subsidizing exports with one hand and restricting them with the other. Our governments have many hands (one for each taxpayer's pocket), a third is used to impose "voluntary" import restrictions which are in fact direct compulsion, thus limiting the ability of the Japanese to buy Canadian coal, iron ore, wheat or anything else.

Yet we talk in the West about the mysterious mind of the Orient! If the Japanese would understand the official mind of Canada let them study Marx-Groucho, that is.

LONG AGO

The children of today would, no doubt, think that our lives were very dull, for there were no cinemas, not many treats, and very few bicycles. But there were magic lanterns, on which was told the thrilling story of the man who had cheese for supper, and into whose snoring mouth a procession of rats disappeared. There were hand-bell ringers, and once there was a phonograph. Then, of course, there were parish teas, children's parties, and best of all, there were walks.

FROM WASHINGTON

By WALTER LIPPMANN

New Spokesman for the West

AFTER his visit to Washington, it can be said that on the German question Gen. de Gaulle is now the leader and the chief spokesman of the Western alliance. It was high time for a change. For until recently the United States has had no German policy. It has had only a tangle of slogans and fictions about reunification which could lead to no solution and settlement of the German problem, and were not seriously meant to do so. Gen. de Gaulle has assumed the leadership of the alliance by sweeping aside the hackneyed slogans and the equivocal fictions. He has given the alliance a new lead in how to think and how to talk about the cold war and about Germany.

Lippmann

Let us hope that the speech-writers in the Pentagon and the State Department will give close attention to the change in style, which was demonstrated in the de Gaulle press conference and the address to Congress.

European Power

Perhaps the greatest difference between Gen. de Gaulle's way of thinking and the conventional thinking of the day is that he sees and treats the Soviet Union as primarily a European great power, and only incidentally as the headquarters of world Communism.

For him Russia existed long before Lenin and will exist long after Khrushchev. Russia is a European nation with national interests in Europe and the central clue to policy in dealing with Russia is to be found not in the writings of Marx and Lenin but in the history of Russia.

This does not mean that Communism, which is a secular religion, does not play a great role in the Soviet Union and in its relations with the rest of the world.

What it does mean is that in negotiating with the Soviet Union, the statesman should fix his eyes on the Russian national interest, not let himself be dazzled by the ideology.

Having fixed his eye on the Russian national interest, on what any Russian government would protect or aim at, the statesman can know where lies the true area of negotiation. When he stands "firm," as the saying goes, he knows concretely where to stand firm, where is the point at which Russia's national interests and America's should be accommodated.

Cool Courtesy

Gen. de Gaulle is one whom not the most foolish among us would call soft on Communism. And yet, when he speaks of the Soviet Union, he does it with cool and impeccable courtesy. He does not stoop to the vulgar epithets which the ghost writers feel they must sprinkle through almost every official utterance. This courtesy comes from the fact that Gen. de Gaulle sees France and he sees Russia as perennial nations within a European society.

This style and tone do not mean, as some may think, that Gen. de Gaulle is a lordly figure left over from another age.

There is much reason to think that in talking with Mr. K. has the head of one European power to the head of another European power, he holds the key which can unlock the door to a detente, that is to a relaxation of tension.

National Interest

The key to the door is that the national interest of France demands that there shall be no revival of pan-Germanism, and that even a political union of the two contemporary Germanys should be put off for a long time. This is also Russia's national interest.

Communist ideology no doubt demands the unification of all the Germans under a Communist state. But the national interest of Russia is different from that.

The Russian national interest is to prevent the rise of so formidable a competitive Communist power in Europe as all the Germanys would make. Russia has quite enough competition of that sort in China and the rest of Asia.

This is the reason why the Khrushchev-de Gaulle talks have been followed by such an improvement in the climate.

Undoubtedly Gen. de Gaulle made it clear to Khrushchev what is the French interest in relation to the German question, and that at bottom it is not radically different from the Russian national interest.

Stone Wall

Since then, Mr. K. has known that if he wants to protect the national interests of Russia in Germany and in Eastern Europe, an understanding is possible. But if he wants to expand Communism instead of protecting Russia, he will run into a stone wall.

The reader must remember that statesmen cannot say these things in so many words. What is happening cannot be openly avowed officially or legalized in formal documents. Many faces will have to be saved.

There are critical elections here this year and in Germany next year. For some time to come we shall continue to hear the old slogans and fictions about reunifying Germany within the NATO alliance but nevertheless, no matter what we hear, if this was ever a Germany policy, it has been dead for years.

It has been dead not only because the Russians would have none of it but because so many in the West never wanted it at all.

FROM LONDON:

Meeting of the Marchers

THE rally that ended this year's Aldermaston march was certainly one of the biggest that Trafalgar Square has seen. At one point in the afternoon, before people began to drift away, it may even have been the biggest that anyone can remember.

But for much of the time the people in the sunlit square were not so densely packed or so single-minded as at the famous anti-Suez rally of November 4, 1956—a day memorable for its stillness and gloom.

Monday's Bank Holiday strollers were able to skirt round the edges of the crowd, taking little notice of the speeches. While the loudspeakers were still ringing a few people with rucksacks could be seen resting their bones on the Strand pavement or making off for Charing Cross station.

Over the Railings

The Foreign Office spokesman on duty had to make a somewhat unusual and less than normally dignified entry into his office.

After leaving his car in the Horse Guards Parade he walked towards Downing Street, but because of the Aldermaston march Downing Street was closed and the gate in the railings leading into it from the Horse Guards Parade was firmly locked. The spokesman was helped over the railings by the police.

Double "Anti"

There is no reason why anybody should not hold with equal sincerity strong views about apartheid and equally strong views about nuclear war. It is perhaps a pity when the two things get mixed.

It would have been better if the 50 or 60 Aldermaston marchers who joined the demonstration against the South African cricketers at London Airport on Sunday had stuck to their brief. The appearance of demonstrators with an anti-nuclear warfare slogan and an anti-apartheid slogan on opposite faces of the same banner suggests, perhaps quite unjustly, the chronic malcontent who is willing to join in anything so long as he can protest about something.

Political Refugee

Mr. Ronald Segal, the editor of "Africa South," and now a political refugee from South Africa, is a sharp-featured, fair young man with eyes a shade lighter than the tropical suit of glistening gun-metal blue which he wore at London Airport on Monday. His broad mouth is quick with a sardonic smile and his rapid voice affects a pronounced English accent.

In spite of his long and trying escape from South Africa—an attempt was made to extradite him at Blantyre—his mind is as determined and energetic as if he had just slipped down from Trinity, Cambridge, where he was a student a few years ago.

His appearance certainly does not measure up to what he says the "whining Minister of External Affairs" called him recently—"one of our worst agitators."

Trouble for Family

For Mr. Segal is unmistakably an upper-class South African. His father owned one of the biggest chain stores in the Union, and his mother's side of the family developed a whole province in the early days. His political radicalism, which started when he was at Capetown University and has thrived for four years in his magazine, has brought trouble to him and to his family.

Last year he was prohibited from attending meetings—even a funeral in one case—under the Suppression of Communism Act, although he is not, of course, a Communist.

Just before he left, his Capetown office was ransacked and his typewriter seized. He has occasionally been threatened by hooligans, and his sister's two children have been threatened by the "South African Ku-Klux-Klan."

When Splitting Was an Art

Ottawa Journal

IN the days when farm homes used wood for big, shining kitchen stoves and for nickel-trimmed handsome base heaters, a lad knew that one of his annual jobs was splitting the wood.

During fall and early winter, the oak, maple, yellow and white birch was cut and piled in the woodland, and when snow conditions were right the wood was hauled to the yard behind the house. The sawyer with his gasoline engine came and the chunks were left in a great heap, ready for splitting.

On March and April Saturdays, a lad went at it. It wasn't a bad task—better than hauling dressing to the fields. Chunks were set on a low chopping block and the straight-grained pieces split easily. Mother wanted both good-sized and small triangular pieces of hard wood for her baking.

She wanted separate tiers in the woodshed of oak and maple, for she claimed one kind of wood was best for bread and cakes, and another for pies and puddings.

Tough knotty chunks were tossed into a heap for the base burner. A chunk of maple or oak would keep a fire going through a winter night, and insure a bed of glowing coals for a quick start on a zero morning.

Occasionally a man might check his son's labors and raise an eyebrow at the size of the pile of chunks that a future citizen considered fool ornery to split. Half a century ago boys took it for granted that they would help with family tasks, and a lad knew that a woodshed full of dry fuel was essential for comfortable winter living.

The Disappearance

THE magical, unbelievable, unexpected, coast to coast disappearance of all private cars in Canada occurred on April 29, 1960, at 3:03 a.m. Eastern Standard Time. It shook the nation.

In Victoria, the news came too late to catch the morning paper, but the evening paper was filled with stories of local reactions, and with opinions gathered by telephone survey and by a poll of the man-in-the-street.

"My Mom made me walk to school instead of driving me like she always does," grumbled a six-year-old. "And when I told her about the traffic and how it was too dangerous for me, she just said, 'What traffic, stupid?'—Boy, was my Mom mad this morning!"

"Traffic patrol was no good this morning," complained a slightly older boy. "Just two trucks and a bus. That's no fun. Holding back all the cars is what I like."

"Two days after I'd made the final payment on the car," groused a fair-haired man at a coffee counter.

"And so soon after getting the new licences and all," said the man next to him.

The high school principal sounded weary on the phone. Well, anyway, it would solve the problem of residents complaining that students were parking cars in their driveways, he said.

"Business has been surprisingly good," observed Miss Girdle of 'Ladies' Ready-to-Wear. "As several of my customers have said, if there are no more payments to make on the car, they might as well spend the money on clothes for a change."

"Put us out of business," said a motel owner. "Put a lot of people out of business. Make the Dirty Thirties look like a picnic."

"Lot of cancellations," reported the head of a car insurance firm. "And some optimists putting in a claim for theft. But word from head office is that we're calling it an act of God."

"Going home to work on a boat I'm building," said a service station operator. "Haven't sold a gallon of gas all morning. And the work we had lined up for today just isn't here."

Sales had slumped, a super market manager said. Customers were only buying what they could carry home, and the weekly family shopping trip for groceries would become a thing of the past, he guessed.

"Got a little poker game going in there," said a packing lot attendant, nodding his head toward his ticket booth.

"They'll have to give us better bus service," said a man who'd had four fully-loaded buses pass him by as he waited at the bus stop.

"We anticipate that, starting nine months from today, the illegitimacy rate will show a marked decline," said a social worker.

"Fewer deaths on the highways, and none of these high-speed chases that scare the daylight out of me," said a police officer.

"Changing my boy friend," said a pert little puss. "Without his car, he's a cube, a real square square."

"Sold out by noon," said the bicycle store operator. "Wish I'd had ten times the stock. Phoned east. But it's the same thing there. Not a hope of getting any more. But repairs! You should see the repairs that are coming in!"

"Oh, my, the ads," said the girl-in-Classified. "Bikes, bikes, bikes. That's all I've had today."

"Premier's on television," said an ardent Liberal. "Smiling all over the screen because, my friends, this will make Beautiful British Columbia more beautiful than ever. What's more, it's a sure sign we should go ahead and develop the Peace!"

YOUR HEALTH

By DR. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

Cataracts of Eyes

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

I hate to be writing so often about cataracts, but I feel I should because in my mail I get so many letters from older persons begging for information on this subject.

Usually, the first big question is, should the person try some quick remedy to be taken by mouth or some eye drops he has read about somewhere? The answer is "No"; there is only one treatment for cataracts, and that is an operation. The second question is, should one cataract be removed when the sight in the other eye is good? And some persons write: they saw four ophthalmologists and three refused to operate, saying it would do no good, because after operation the two eyes would not work together—unless perhaps with the help of a contact lens; but one man was keen to operate.

Whom should they believe? I wish they could read a stack of letters I have received from persons who had one cataract removed, and now are sorry because they cannot read without perhaps covering up one eye. Some eye men operate as soon as sight begins to fail definitely in the good eye. They do not fit a lens in front of the operated eye until the person needs to use that eye.

Another question from spry old people of 80 is: "should I insist on having the operation? My children keep discouraging me, saying I am too old." My answer is: "If you are too blind to read, and if you can find an eye specialist who will operate go ahead. There is almost no shock to a cataract operation. It is done under local anesthesia and it takes only a few minutes. I am told that many able eye-doctors are now letting the patient get up soon after the operation, and this helps a lot.

Usually, when both eyes have cataracts, the doctor operates on one eye at a time. In most cases the result is good; the person can read again, or at least can get about again. In cases of doubt, the patient should talk to three or four of the leading eye men in his city. This is cheaper than travelling about to other cities.

Many a mother writes to say that she is frantic over the illness of a boy who is perhaps delinquent, or violent in his rages, or unable to read well, or unable to get along at school, or who has curious momentary "dumb spells," or curious tizzies, or who is being treated by a child psychiatrist. Sometimes the mother is intelligent enough to say that she wonders if the boy has a "touch of epilepsy" such as his Uncle Bill had, or she wonders if his "ornerness" is due to the brain fever he had after an awful attack of measles.

I agree entirely with the mother, and I marvel at the occasional psychiatrist who will treat such a boy for months or years without getting electroencephalograms made. Often when these records of the electric currents of the brain are made, they show clearly, either that he has a typical inherited epilepsy, or that he has an area of inflammation in the brain. Then we know that the psychiatrist has been all wrong in blaming the parents for doing something or other to the child to make him ill. The child is physically as ill as if he had a broken arm, and many doctors think it utterly stupid to keep trying to talk him out of it at $25 an hour!

The other day, as I sat at luncheon with a distinguished group of doctors in Washington, D.C., I was so delighted to find that my host sitting at my left was an old pupil of the great Dr. Wilder Penfield, who recently retired as head of the great neurological Institute at McGill University in Montreal, Canada. As much as anyone in the world, Dr. Penfield has shown us doctors that in many cases the epileptic fit is a mental one. Often it arises in what is called the temporal lobe at one side of the brain. Sometimes a brain surgeon can locate it and remove it, and thereby cure the patient. I keep wondering why we doctors so seldom order electroencephalograms when they can so often tell us so much about a patient.

U.K. APPLIES BRAKES TO BOOMING ECONOMY

LONDON (AP)—The government imposed a long-expected credit squeeze on Britain's booming economy today. It restricted bank loans and the terms for instalment purchases.

A minimum down payment of 20 per cent was imposed on the purchase of goods such as cars, radios, television sets and kitchen equipment.

HOME GARDEN

Christmas Blooms Mean Planning Now

In the middle of the spring rush of garden work, we must take time to prepare some plants for blooming next Christmas.

The growing period from now until fall is needed for them to be of sufficient size to be attractive during the next winter season. Poinsettias which have had a drying-off period until the end of March, will now have a few new shoots showing. When these are about three inches long, sever them with a sharp knife and insert them in a pot of sandy mixture to root. Covering with plastic film will keep a humid atmosphere.

As soon as rooted, the cuttings

TWO SET, THREE TO GO IN PROVINCIAL VOTES

(By The Canadian Press)

General elections are scheduled for two of Canada's 10 provinces in June and two others are expected this summer.

A fifth provincial government—British Columbia—also may hold an election before the year is out.

Quebec voters go to the polls June 22. Premier Stanfield of Nova Scotia announced Tuesday his Progressive Conservative government will seek re-election in a June 7 vote. The Conservatives will bid for a second term in office after 23 years in opposition.

New Brunswick also is expected to have a general election during the summer.

An election is expected this year in Saskatchewan, where Canada's only CCF government is in power.

Premier Bennett of B.C. has indicated his Social Credit government will call a general election either this year or in 1961.

New Leaders, New Issues

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT

QUEBEC (CP) — This election, say Quebec's political observers, will be different.

Quebec voters go to the polls June 22 to choose between old parties with new leaders and new issues.

Premier Antonio Barrette heads the mighty Union Nationale party machine that, under its founder the late Maurice Duplessis, rolled to victories in five of the last six elections.

His main opposition is expected to come from the lately resurgent Liberals under new leader Jean Lesage, who Wednesday welcomed the coming election as "the time for a change" and "the hour of liberation."

At dissolution of the 93-seat legislative assembly, the UN held 71 seats, the Liberals 17. Independents three, and two seats were vacant. The 1956 election had returned 72 UN members, 20 Liberals and one Independent.

The vacant seats were those of two premiers—Mr. Duplessis, and his successor Paul Sauve, premier for only four months before he died January 2.

The strong figure of Mr. Duplessis will be absent for the first election since 1923, when he was defeated in his home town of Trois-Rivieres.

Premier Barrette, a tall, silver-haired man of 61, rose from the ranks of the working class and became Quebec's labor minister, a portfolio he retained.

Mr. Lesage, husky 47-year-old lawyer and former federal cabinet minister, has been preparing for the election since 1958 when he was elected to succeed Georges Lapalme.

The Social Democratic party, Quebec's CCF, also has new leadership. Mrs. Therese Casgrain, white-haired pioneer of women's rights in Quebec, has been replaced by Michel Chartrand, fiery labor leader.

Leadership has always played an important role in Quebec politics but the dominant factor in the 1944, 1948, 1952 and 1956 provincial elections was the Quebec-Ottawa situation.

This now is changed.

For the first time, the UN faces an election with a politically friendly government in power in Ottawa.

Mr. Duplessis fully exploited the situation of the Quebec Liberals as a party which had official links with the federal Liberals then in power.

He aroused fear in many voters that Quebec Liberals would give in to Ottawa Liberals on taxation and provincial rights issues.

But the Progressive Conservatives took power in 1957.

Mr. Duplessis continued to affirm during his last year in office that his government's provincial rights policy would not change, regardless of the party in office in Ottawa.

How to Baby Your Outboard

By DON INGHAM — Times Boating Editor

The story is told of an old hand with outboard motors who bought one of the big, new, powerful models and promptly asked a maintenance man for advice on keeping it in top condition.

"Keep the outside clean and leave the inside to me," he was told.

That could be a good idea. The man who knew his way around Ole Evinrude's original with the square tank and knob on the flywheel might be lost among the starters, generators, gear shifts, synchronized controls, fuel pumps, and multiple carburetors on the biggest and best of the 1960 models.

Pointers for Spring Outfitting

However, they are not all big and tremendously complicated. For the mechanically-inclined man who has one of the smaller and more simple motors, here are a few pointers for spring outfitting.

1. Install a new set of spark plugs properly set for your motor in accordance with the gap setting given in the manufacturer's instruction book.
2. With the same operation check wiring for worn insulation.
3. Spin the motor rapidly several times to remove excess oil from the cylinders that you put in when the motor was laid up in the fall.

4. Clean breaker points by gently rubbing with fine sandpaper. Or better have a service man check ignition and magneto. Also generators and starting motors, if any.
5. Clean fuel lines, filter screws and carburetor, after draining—if not done last fall.
6. Check the starter cord for worn or frayed, braided cover along its full length.
7. Drain and refill the gear case with new lubricant—to motor manufacturer's specifications—after flushing out with gasoline, if you didn't do it in the fall.
8. Check propeller for nicks and dents. If too badly damaged for nicks to be filed down or dents to be knocked out with a mallet, send to a propeller shop for repairs. Replace bent, shear pins and apply a thin coat of grease to propeller shaft, before replacing propeller.

Consult Your Motor Manual

A drop or two of light oil is required on control linkage joints and bushings. Fill all grease fittings with recommended grade of grease. Consult your motor manual for this information.

At transom clamp screws, cowlings screws and at the hand grip throttle apply light oil.

Check over and tighten all motor bolts, nuts, screws as needed.

Worn or scratched parts on motor exterior should be touched up with paint—use an aerosol spray can with matching color. Auto body wax should be rubbed over the chrome.

REEVE'S PREDICTION

Two-Mill Hike for Oak Bay

Chances are Oak Bay's mill rate will be increased this year by a minimum of two mills to make a total rate of 40.5 mills, Reeve George Murdoch predicted today.

This increase is expected to be atop the general rate of last year's 15.8 mills, leaving untouched the 19.88 mills for school purposes, and the 2.77 for debt payments.

There will be at least one more lengthy session on the estimates in closed committee before final figures are arrived at.

The municipality has budgeted for minimum expenditures of $1,863,498 "though there are other items which still must be added on," Mr. Murdoch said.

The estimates committee is considering possibility of contracting certain public works in an effort to pare costs, but as yet no decision has been reached.

Doctor Raps Unions

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI)—An American Medical Association official charged today that labor leaders were backing compulsory medical care for the aged in an attempt "to get their retired union members off their back".

FULL TORONTO TRADING

MARKET SUMMARIES

Toronto Continues Sluggish Trading

Industrials and western oils continued to dominate a depressed market at Toronto as trading continued at its usual, sluggish pace.

The New York market was lower under light trading. Steels, electronics, oils, rails and utilities were on the downside. Many groups were mixed.

tendency today but gilt-edged securities were dull.

Japanese stocks were marked down sharply after the British government's move against tax abuses. In rails Canadian Pacific was easier and trans-Atlantic stocks generally were irregular.

There was a slight preponderance of small gains in the industrial market.

AT TORONTO Dominion Glass was the feature among industrial winners, up 2 1/2 at 73 1/2, with Ash Temple and National Steel Car up 1/2 at 9 and 14 1/2, and Abitibi and B.C. Telephone up 1/2 at 38 1/2 and 43 1/2.

Falconbridge led mines down with a drop of 1/2 at 29 1/2 with Cassiar, Hudson Bay and Mining Corporation of Canada all off 1/2 at 12 1/2, 44 and 11. International Nickel gained 1/2 at 51.

In senior uranium, Algom gained 1/2 at 11 and Gunbar moved ahead 15 cents at $8.55, while Denison dropped 35 cents at $9.25.

Hudson's Bay and Pacific Petroleum put the damper on an inactive western oils section.

AT NEW YORK Aluminum Ltd., Canadian Pacific and McIntyre Porcupine rose 1/2 and International Nickel 1/2, while Distillers Seagram and Walker Gooderham lost.

AT MONTREAL the stock exchange slipped in light trading today.

North B.C. Holds Riches

By HAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

To many British Columbians names like Cassiar, Stewart, Atlin and Groundhog are little more than inconsequential specks in that huge tract of provincial real estate north of the 54th parallel.

To Mines and Petroleum Resources Minister Kenneth Kiernan they represent more than mountains, valleys, muskeg and scenic lakes.

In his eyes and through his colored lens (Mr. Kiernan is an avid and accomplished photographer) Cassiar, Stewart et al may be small spots today... but wait until tomorrow!

Tomorrow, he told the Chamber of Commerce's Public Affairs group Wednesday, is 1963. That is when construction men are expected to complete carving the road from Cassiar to Stewart.

Mr. Kiernan: "Let's look at what it will mean to asbestos alone. The first year they mined asbestos at Cassiar the entire production was worth $23,000. Last year they shipped $9,000,000 worth. And they did it the hard way. It had to be trucked from Cassiar to Whitehorse where it was put on rails to Skagway. Then it had to be loaded on ships for Vancouver. Look at the map and see what a roundabout haul that is." (We looked and we saw—that part of B.C. is inhabited by tall mountains, few people, no roads and excess mileage.)

BIG SAVING

"When the road goes through they'll be able to truck it direct from Cassiar to Stewart," said the minister. "They'll make a trip each way in two days. Now it takes three days—plus a longer ship haul. By cutting the haul and reducing handling costs they will be able to save $20 per ton."

Asbestos, said Mr. Kiernan, isn't all they have up in that part of the woods.

"There have been significant copper discoveries—you'll hear more about them. And coal! I know it isn't considered a desirable mineral but that picture could change. Near Cassiar we flew over what they call the Groundhog area where they told us there were high coal deposits. They weren't kidding. We could see surface coal for about 50 miles."

Asbestos, copper, coal. Anything else?

"Hydro energy," beamed Mr. Kiernan. "The Atlin Lakes have an energy potential of between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 kilowatts."

Then... "naturally it won't be harnessed for some time. There's no need for it there. Just a handful of people in the whole area."

MORE JOBS

Developing his theme (B.C.'s northern resources offer a solution to unemployment when fully developed) Mr. Kiernan pointed out that even the relatively small development of petroleum and natural gas (2 to 5 per cent of the potential) had boosted the economy.

"They said this development would affect agriculture in the Peace. But they were wrong. Fort St. John was a sleepy village 10 years ago with a population of 500. Today it is a bustling community of 5,000, and oil and gas made it that way."

Dutch Send Arms

THE HAGUE, The Netherlands (Reuters) — Dutch jet fighters and warships will be sent to the Pacific to reinforce Dutch West New Guinea because of Indonesia's foreign policy and military potential, it was announced Wednesday.

GAS LICENCES—J. W. Kerr, president of Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., said Wednesday his company has already received licences from federal government to export natural gas to U.S. Licences cover export of 204,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day for 20-year period at Emerson, Man., and up to 204,000,000 cubic feet on any one day on an interruptible basis at discretion of company after all Canadian requirements have been met.

ON TWO-FOR-ONE BASIS

Inco Votes Shares Split

TORONTO (CP) — Shareholders of International Nickel Company of Canada Ltd. approved a proposal Wednesday to split the company's shares on a two-for-one basis.

Under the proposal the resulting 30,000,000 shares will be increased to 36,000,000.

Of the 15,000,000 shares now authorized, 14,593,031 were issued at March 31.

The proxy committee reported that it had been instructed to vote 11,330,799 shares for the proposal and 30,946 against—with 40,033 shares asking that they be not voted.

On this report and a voice vote of the meeting—attended by some 200 people—the proposal was declared adopted.

On the Toronto Stock Exchange last trading on the old shares on Monday was $100.50 a share. The new shares—traded on an if-as-and-when issued basis—are quoted above the $50 mark.

TO MEET IN WINNIPEG

Dr. John F. Thompson, chairman, said a meeting of directors will be held in Winnipeg

Saturday—the first that the board has held in Winnipeg. At this meeting it is proposed to declare a quarterly dividend on the new shares of 37 1/2 cents a share, equivalent to $1.50 a year, and to the $3.00 currently being paid on the present shares.

Directors will leave today for Thompson, Man., to inspect the company's new project there.

Dr. Thompson said the company has no present plans for issue of the 6,000,000 additional shares which will be created.

RECORD SALES SET BY GM

NEW YORK (UPI) — The General Motors Corporation reported Wednesday net sales of $3,637,972,071 and earnings of $323,625,616, or $1.14 a common share for the first quarter of 1960.

Chairman Frederic G. Donner and president, John F. Gorkoh, said the sales were a record for any three-month period in GM history and the earnings were a new high for a first quarter.

SHRINE BOXING

Lalich, Black Enter

One of the youngest fighters in the Shrine Western Canadian championship tournament Saturday will be 16-year-old Tommy Black of the Victoria Boxing Club.

A veteran of eight years' experience despite his age, Black is British Columbia champion in the 112-pound flyweight division.

Strong and fast, he will be going all out Friday to prove he can stand up with the best since he is ineligible for the Olympic trials because of his age. Only boxers who have passed their 17th birthday are allowed in Olympic competition.

LALICH ENTERED

Another Victoria boxer and British Columbia champion who is ineligible for the Olympics is bantamweight Tony Lalich.

The former Yugoslavian, a resident in Canada for less than a year, Lalich easily won the British Columbia championship and is a potent threat to visiting fighters in the 119-pound division.

The two are the latest entries in the star-studded tournament.

Doors open at 6:30 Saturday night at Memorial Arena and the first bout gets under way at 7:30.

A total of 20 fights are scheduled between boxers from British Columbia, Washington, Alberta and Saskatchewan.

SIDELINE SLANTS

BY

Doug Peden

Art Donaldson is a former member of what must have been one of the world's most exclusive golf clubs. It had four members and might have been known as the Northland Niblick Nest.

That was five years ago when Art was trying his talents with an oil-drilling crew after four years as professional manager at the somewhat more luxurious acres of Calgary's Earl Grey course.

Thoughts of fairways are foolish on northern oil fields, but since big Art would sooner drop a golf ball four inches into a cup than twist a diamond drill half a mile through muskeg and rock, he went a-lookin'. He set up shop in a big gravel pit and eventually recruited three more members for his "club."

Actually, it was only a driving range and any putting was strictly incidental. But it did keep the Donaldson swinging muscles limber until he arrived at Victoria in October of that year.

One of the first things Donaldson did after getting the feel of real fairways again was to apply for re-instatement as an amateur. After waiting three years for a reply, he tried again and this time was told to wait another five years and the matter would be considered.

That was enough to make the big guy mutter "tahell withya," because he would have been unable to enter competition during the waiting period. "I was getting too old," says Arthur. "It wasn't worthwhile waiting any longer."

So the stylish swinger is still a pro and stepping into any open competitions that come along. He's very much in the Times Vancouver Island Open. In fact, he goes against Ron MacLeod — the Victorian who spends his summers at the Jasper Park pro position in Sunday's 36-hole Island final at Gorge Vale.

That one shapes up as quite a match. Donaldson was slightly terrific in last Sunday's semis as he tripped Laurie Kerr, the 1956 Times champ, while MacLeod was brushing past Laurie Carroll, the 1958 Island king.

Raised on Mashies and Tee Talk

The summer of the gravel pit is the only one Art has spent away from a golf course and the six-two, 204-pounder says it will be the last. Practically raised on mashies and tee talk at Trail, where his father built a golf course and then stayed around to take care of the layout, he was busy digging divots while other kids were digging worms for fishing.

In his career, which takes in one-year terms as a working pro at Trail and Kimberley, plus the four-year stint at Calgary, Art has picked up a few titles. Among them are the 1958 Cowichan Open, the Calgary City Open, the Kaslo Open, three successive wins in the Nelson Labor Day tournament and a Gorge Vale crown.

"I'm the poor man's Dow Finsterwald," grins the man who finished fourth in the 1950 Western Canada Open and the 1952 B.C. Open and collected folding stuff several times in the Trail Open. "I don't win many, but I'm pretty good at getting into the money."

Art's most spectacular finish came in the Cowichan event. Trailing going into the final round, he uncorked a blazing 69, coming home, with a course-record 31 over the last nine holes, to nudge Dave Fanthorpe by two strokes.

Now 34, Donaldson has a 64 on a par-69 course to his credit and several 66s, including a six-under effort. But the best of all was in the making at Gorge Vale—until he arrived at the 12th hole, a bending, 440-yard trail of potential misery, bordering a cemetery and appropriately named "the graveyard."

Seven under par for 11 holes, Donaldson buried his chances for a great round when he needed a double-bogey to get past the headstones. He added a bogey at the 14th but still came in with a 67, his best-ever score on his home course.

Art's Putting Has 'New Look Now'

Perhaps it is only fitting that a guy who now earns his living as a boiler-maker should be at his best with an iron in his mitts. Anyway, Art is an expert with the irons and his pet is the No. 1 club, which a million golfers wish had never been invented.

Donaldson, who "doesn't hit them as far as I used to," averages about 215 yards off the tees and is really confident only when handling an iron. As for putting, he will only concede "it used to bother me, but now it has the new look."

The new look came when he used his muscles last Saturday night. After a practice round in which he heeled several putts, Art was cleaning clubs in his basement and decided a change might help a guy who has had difficulty bending over since six chunks of a fractured disc were carved out of his back last October. A bend across the Donaldson knee left the putter with a permanent kink.

He forgot about it until he was well along in a string

Victoria Players Jake's Best Pals

New Westminster 12, Victoria 6

By DOUG PEDEN

Jake Proctor is probably still chortling today because the opening portion of the Inter-City Lacrosse League schedule has his New Westminster club playing Victoria on successive nights.

Jake, who likes nothing better than to steal a boxla march on Victoria, was happily figuring at Memorial Arena Wednesday night that the schedule gives his crew a chance to rap the Vics twice before they wake up.

He could be right. The Victorians were caught napping on a half dozen occasions in the final two periods Wednesday as the Royal City sprinters came from behind to whip coach Norm Baker's squad 12-6 before 1,516 disappointed fans.

MORE PEP NEEDED

Unless the Vics take a pep pill or two before the same clubs clash again at New Westminster tonight, the lads from the banks of the Fraser will have a flying start in their race to retain the league crown they won last year.

"We made a lot of mistakes," smiled Proctor when Wednesday's waltz was over, "but they made a lot more. I hope they make as many tomorrow night."

With players hampered by a slippery floor and lack of conditioning, it was a scramble, often little tussle and the Vics seldom flashed the drive that has been a trademark of former city clubs.

Victoria, tending reasonably well to checking chores in the early stages, grabbed a 3-2 first-period lead and packed a 4-3 advantage into the third period.

STALLED

But after Stu Smith had boosted the margin to 5-3 in the opening minute of the third session, it was all New Westminster as the Baker Boys neglected to hustle and played as if half of them hadn't even been introduced.

Ahead 7-6 at the end of the third quarter, New Westminster made it an easy win by collecting all the five goals scored in the final quarter.

Possibly the biggest disappointment for Baker was the failure of the odd-man play that had looked deadly in workouts. Although New Westminster was charged with 21 of the 33 minutes in penalties and was once short-handed for eight minutes, the Vics were unable to make their power play pay off and gave up one goal while they had the extra man.

ABLE REPLACEMENT

Setting the scoring pace for the visitors was Billy Jobb, who was called into action when Cliff Sepka was sidelined by a concussion suffered in a Tuesday workout.

Jobb chipped in with three goals and Ken Oddy, rookie Doug Walmsmith, Jack Barclay and former Victoria Shamrock Jack Howes each chipped in with two tallies.

Gary Moore and Smith each tallied twice for Victoria with Ed Kowalyk and rookie Doug Flynn adding single tallies.

One thing is certain, several of the players wearing red uniforms Wednesday night will be playing for their positions tonight.

"There'll be some changes before next Wednesday," growled Baker, who is expected to have Ontario import Paul Parnell, Tom English, Bob McKee and possibly the injured Lew Landess in action when Nanaimo visit Memorial Arena next week.

Baker may have to make one change for tonight since Ron Jay is a doubtful starter. The former Ontario junior scoring king suffered a hip injury early in the second quarter and was carried off the floor on a stretcher. Later, Jay said he expected to play tonight, but

MEMORIAL CUP OPENER

Oil King Goalie Stymies Teepees

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Edmonton Oil Kings melted St. Catharines Teepees in chinook-like style Wednesday night to win the opening game of the Memorial Cup final, 5-3.

Second game of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian junior hockey crown is scheduled for Toronto Friday and the third Sunday afternoon.

The western champions held an edge in Wednesday's game for more than two periods with their swift skating and they took no nonsense along the boards, returning checks from the burlier Teepees.

Brodies in Chase For Second Place

The powerful Evcoes are now virtually assured of ending up top of the Victoria and District Football Association standings, but the battle for second place rages on.

A 6-0 victory by Brodies over Esquimalt Wednesday night vaulted the Bakers into a tie for third spot, one point behind second-place Scottish.

Brodies have a chance to grab the runnerup position Saturday when they meet Scottish at 2:45 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park. Ladysmith will hope for the same thing when the up-island squad plays Gorge Hotel at Topaz Avenue Park starting at 2 p.m.

Evcoes meet Saanich this Saturday at 1:15 p.m. in Royal Athletic Park.

Inactive will be Kickers and Victoria Wests, who have one game apiece to play; Heaneys and Esquimalt, who have finished; and the Navy squad, which will be using its last two games to try to get one win for the season.

The 6-0 shellacking handed out to the Sailors Wednesday was typical of the season which has seen them lose 17 games and draw one.

Brodies led 2-0 at the half and were in complete charge throughout the contest.

Softball Ranks Split; 'B' Loop Goes Sunday

The Victoria Men's Senior Softball League has reverted to a two-division system following last season's confusion over the "Senior Open" classification.

A decision was to be made after an examination today by the club doctor.

The star of the evening may have been Gogi Stewart, who has deserted the playing ranks for a fling with the whistle. Although perhaps a bit quick with some of his calls, Gogi was right on top of the play all the way and caught a lot of the chippy stuff that other league referees usually miss or ignore.

Even if the players didn't please the fans, Stewart did. And he should be invited back.

The Central Park Division decided to split into two with a six-team Senior "A" group and a Senior "B" league with an, as yet, undetermined number of teams.

The Heywood division will have six teams, all of Senior "B" calibre and will open the 1960 season Sunday.

Navy meets defending champions Maycock Optical Sunday at 2 p.m. and in the evening at 6:30 Chinese Students take on MacNutt's Grocery.

The well-regarded Navy squad under coach Andy George has moved over from Central Park where it was situated last year and is expected to provide some strong opposition to the other five teams.

Chinese Students return to the softball wars after an absence of three years.

Trail Production Unit Rates Extra Attention

TRAIL (CP) — The Pinokio McIntyre-Hal Jones-Bobby Kromm line of the Trail Smoke Eaters came in for plenty of scrutiny Wednesday night in the Chatham dressing room following a 5-5 overtime tie which left Chatham leading the 1960 Allan Cup final 1-0 with one tied.

"We'll put our checking unit on them the next game. You watch and see, they'll be batting zero. And remember I told you so," said Chatham manager-coach John Horeck.

McIntyre and Jones, both recruits from Rossland Warriors of the Western International League for the playoffs, made their presence felt Wednesday as each scored twice, with diminutive McIntyre's second sending the game into overtime.

TOP SCORERS

The pair finished one-two in the WHL scoring race.

Horeck said he'll send his big checking unit of Fred Hetsch, Fred Aitken and Al Cleary out to stop Smoke Eaters' big production line in the next game.

Kromm, who chipped in with three assists Wednesday, scoffed at the reports.

"If they think they were in a tough game tonight, they ain't seen nothin' yet."

He said his club hasn't entirely shaken off the effects of the two-week layoff following completion of the Western finals with Port Arthur.

Horeck blamed his team's mistakes for allowing Trail to gain their overtime verdict.

FLIGHT OF BUMBLEBEE WHEN LUIS TAKES OFF

CHICAGO (AP) — Bill Veeck's newest plaything, a huge electronic scoreboard that has everything but a pari-mutuel window, explodes into action tonight when Chicago White Sox face Cleveland Indians.

The glorified pinball machine can emit about any noise the White Sox president chooses from a remote control board.

He can sound the thundering hooves of a cavalry charge when Ted Kluszewski lumbers around the bases, or play Flight of the Bumblebee when Luis Aparicio steals a base.

It doesn't take much imagination to figure what Veeck will play when Cleveland pitcher Gary Ball (1-0) takes the mound.

When he gets tired of making noises, he can flash messages on a Soxogram or time pitches on a Pitchometer.

The scoreboard also flashes the usual balls, strikes, errors, etc.

SHIFT APPROVED 'IF'

Scheduling Problems Lakers' Main Worries

NEW YORK (UPI) — Minneapolis Lakers, who couldn't draw flies to their games in recent years, hope to strike it rich in California.

The National Basketball Association Wednesday approved by a unanimous vote the transfer of the Lakers' franchise to Los Angeles "if a satisfactory schedule can be drawn" for the 1960-61 season.

Owners will meet again in New York May 9 and May 16 to wrestle with a new coast-to-coast schedule. Following those two meetings, the league is expected to officially approve the Los Angeles franchise.

One of the biggest problems facing other NBA teams in this western movement is the transportation cost. However, Laker president Bob Short has offered to pay part of these expenses, which he estimates will cost approximately $78,000 a season.

Lakers' move to Los Angeles will be the fourth shift in the NBA in the last five years. Milwaukee Hawks moved to St. Louis in 1955 while the Fort Wayne Pistons shifted to Detroit and the Rochester Royals transferred to Cincinnati in 1957.

Fighter Dies

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — An 18-year-old youth, Michael Golubiff died of an apparent brain hemorrhage Wednesday night shortly after leaving the ring in a supervised boxing tournament in the state reformatory. The welterweight bout was halted in the second round.

IRISH SWEEPSTAKES TICKETS

Not Illegal to Buy 'Em---Just to Sell

By OSCAR FRALEY

DUBLIN, Ireland (UPI) — This is the home of the greatest off-course betting syndicate in the history of gambling.

It is known officially as the Hospitals Trust, a completely legal bit of lottery larceny which since 1930 has raised $450,000,000 for medical purposes.

It is known more familiarly as the Irish Sweepstakes. It makes Pittsburgh Phil and even Sam Insull look like a poverty-stricken penny-ante operator from Podunk.

Sweepstakes tickets are sold, according to white-haired Spencer Freeman, one of the Hospital Trust founders, in 147 countries.

Of this number, he adds with understandable reluctance, a good percentage are peddled in the United States and Canada.

This, at first glance, is difficult to understand because vending them in any place West of New York or Halifax or East of San Francisco or Vancouver long has been officially frowned on.

This brings a pained expression to the gentle face of the be-knickered Freeman.

"Oh, I say," he said, with a hurt pastel shade creeping into his bright blue eyes. "It isn't illegal to buy them in the United States, you know. It's only illegal to sell them."

This vague difference calls apparently for some sort of official Irish thought segregation. The gold-conscious Gaels have worked around the problem very nicely.

They don't tell anybody to sell them.

They have a list of buyers to whom tickets are sent in plain unmarked envelopes.

The buyers are given an address of a citizen in Dublin to whom the ticket stubs and cash are mailed in a plain envelope.

This serves two purposes. The money gets back to Ireland. It is not confiscated by watchful postal inspectors as it would be if addressed to the Irish Hospitals Trust.

There is, as anyone knows who has ever purchased one of these tickets to a bright new world, a slight hitch.

The tickets may be purchased at any hotel desk, cigar stand, beauty parlor or what have you in Ireland at their face value of one pound. This is what the foreign purchaser cavalry charge at Aintree.

is supposed to get them for when he links his name to the stub because the seller's payoff supposedly is two free tickets.

But the current price in New York at least is $6. The extra $3.20 the New Yorker hands his favorite suds dispenser apparently is to soothe his nerves while he watches for bobbies.

However, enough of it gets back to Ireland, even if your man never mails in the stubs but simply pockets the whole bit. And the Irish have done a fine bit of hospital work and also built themselves a plant which runs one-eighth of a mile and employs 1,500 women all year long and an extra 1,500 when the raffie goes off.

The biggest play, Freeman explained, is on the Grand National steeplechase, the annual most of the taking is done by relatives of winners.

This is because it is the first of three annual events and they have more time to prepare and sell for it.

The other two events are the famed Epsom Derby and the Cambridge Handicap at Newmarket.

When the ticket stubs all are in, they are placed in a mammoth seven-ton barrel and are mixed for three days. Then the winning tickets are pulled out by the prettiest nurses in Ireland. And just to make sure this part is on the level, the tickets are inspected by the Dublin police commissioner.

From this end it's as clean as a Killarney lake. There's no question, however, but what a lot of people get taken.

From the sad tales you hear, most of the taking is done by relatives of winners.

ATHLETICS TOP TIGERS AGAIN

Law on Pirates' Side, So Bucs Move Along

By United Press International

Go no further than Vern Law's 1.00 earned run average and Bob Skinner's .390 batting average if you are looking for reasons why the Pittsburgh Pirates look like the comeback kids of 1960.

One of the biggest disappointments of 1959, the Pirates lead the National League by one game today and their six-game winning streak equals the best they put together all last season. In fact, it is only one game short of the longest streak any NL team achieved last season.

And there's no doubt that Law, a 30-year-old, 200-pound righthander, and Skinner, a gangling 190-pound outfielder, have been the key reasons for the turnaround.

THIRD STRAIGHT

Law turned in his third straight complete-game victory of the season and Skinner drove in two runs with a 2-for-2 performance Wednesday night when the Pirates shaded Philadelphia Phillies 3-2 to go one full game ahead of the idle San Francisco Giants.

In 27 innings this season, Law has yielded only 21 hits and three walks while striking out 11 batters. He posted an 18.9 record last season and looks this year like he could be a 20-game winner. Skinner, meanwhile, has collected "6 hits in 41 tries and knocked in 15 runs to establish himself as one of the league's most dangerous hitters.

Milwaukee Braves swept a two-game series from their favorite cousins when they whipped the Cincinnati Reds, 8-5, and Los Angeles Dodgers beat Chicago Cubs, 9-4, in the other NL games.

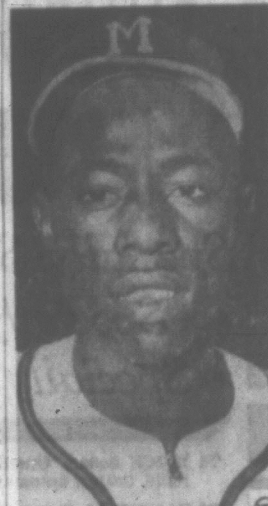

In the American League, Kansas City Athletics dealt the Detroit Tigers a second straight loss, 3-1; Washington Senators defeated New York Yankees, 5-4, and the Baltimore

Ortles scored an 8-3 win over Boston Red Sox.

Hank Aaron drove in two runs with a homer and three singles and also contributed a spectacular rally-killing catch in the outfield to pace the Braves' triumph.

Wally Moon had a triple, double and single and stole a base to lead the Dodgers' late-inning assault on Chicago reliever Don Elston.

Ray Herbert supplied the pitching and Bob Cerv the muscle for the Athletics, who handed Hank Aguirre his first defeat—Cerv singled to help the Athletics score a run in the fourth inning and homered in the eighth.

HANK AARON ... fine outing

Irish Turf Victory

NEWMARKET, Eng. (AP)—Martial, owned by New York financier Reginald N. Webster, gave Ireland its first victory in the 152-year-old 2,000 guineas race Wednesday by scoring a photo decision over the favored Venture VII.

of 10 straight one-putt greens on the morning round of his match with Kerr. The bent weapon acted like it had eyes all day and Art was three under when the tussle ended at the 33rd.

If it retains some of its magic Sunday, the husky better will be hard to steer away from the Times title. But Donaldson isn't promising a thing.

"I expect to win every match I play," he said, "but I think it will be close. We'll just have to wait and see how things go."

That we will, and with the two men who can both bust on their good days, the struggle could be well worth seeing. They start at 9.15 and begin their afternoon trip around the Gorge hills about 1.30.

THE JOHANSSON STORY

Bad Boy Label Returns During Hitch in Navy

Ingemar Johansson, the Swedish boxer who was branded a coward at the Olympic Games and persevered to become heavyweight champion of the world, has turned author to tell the action-packed story behind his climb to the top. His exclusive story is being carried in The Times. This is the 11th of 16 daily installments.

By INGEMAR JOHANSSON

Call-up into the Swedish Navy interrupted my professional boxing ambitions . . . and put me right back in the "bad boy" headlines again.

But I think they were comically out of proportion to the unimportant nature of the incidents that got me punished for indiscipline.

On my first roll-call I was told, "Johansson, you must set an example to the others. They look up to you."

But I had no wish to set an example, or be looked up to. I wanted to be like all the others.

In fact, I was such a bad military example that I was not even placed in the front rank when we marched. They slipped me into the column so I couldn't be seen.

I didn't want to cause any trouble. I just wanted to stay on dry land, that's all. I hated the sea and detested the thought of going on boats, and it wasn't me who wouldn't cooperate. It was my military bosses. They could have given me a job where I would have been useful, say, as a sports trainer, or even let me go into the infantry.

I was troublesome, difficult to handle, spiteful and stubborn; did many stupid things, and the fact that I wasn't allowed to stay on land when

'Exile' Wasn't Very Successful

After my release, I happily finished my time scraping rust from a laid-up destroyer, waiting to take up again the professional boxing career that many people thought was doomed before it began, after the abuse that followed my disqualification in Helsinki.

Because I was bored with amateur boxing then, I hadn't wanted to compete in the Olympics anyway, and the events of that hullabalooed final, or rather the conspicuous lack of events, made it essential that I should wait for the storm to die down before I turned pro.

So I went into a sort of voluntary boxing exile in northern Sweden, boxing exhibitions with Ole Tandberg.

It wasn't particularly successful and in one hall there

Cavicchi Attacked Like Wild Animal

Cavicchi was of the Hercules type, with bunches of muscles like ropes across his back. I seemed almost round shouldered in comparison.

It was a strange fight and it began as if an avalanche was falling. Cavicchi attacked like a fury and for a few minutes I thought I'd bitten off more than I could chew. He attacked with a frenzied will to win.

He was as strong as an ox. I was amazed.

At the interval I said to my

INGEMAR JOHANSSON . . . hated the sea

thought he had blown himself out with his forcing, which left me uninjured and fresh.

In the 13th I landed a couple of body blows which didn't seem especially dangerous, but he sank behind a double guard in front of me and stood still. I was so amazed that I didn't punch and stood back from him. He got up again.

I went into him again with a couple of short blows which landed on his body. He bunched behind the double guard again. Now I looked for a chance to strike and clipped a right under his heart.

His legs splayed out and he tumbled to the canvas. I couldn't believe the blow was so hard. I suppose it must have landed perfectly.

He lay on the canvas and shook his head at his corner.

This didn't necessarily mean that he could get up. These blows under the heart aren't like anything else. You can lie on the canvas and be conscious of the situation but you simply cannot get yourself up. The body refuses.

The referee said: "Ten." Cavicchi was still on the canvas. I was European champion. My back was pounded tender by well-wishers, but everything else around me tasted good.

THE TIME OF THEIR LIVES

Into the life of every child comes a time to learn the value of saving. This is a lesson the B of M is anxious to cooperate with parents in teaching.

That's why "MY BANK" keeps open special school wickets where the younger set can do their banking every Friday after school—just like mom and dad. B of M school wickets have proved their worth in encouraging children to put some of their pennies aside.

A single dollar deposit is enough to get any of your children off at the right wicket to lifetime habits of thrift.

Why not send them to the B of M this Friday? Or, better still, come along with them.

WORKING WITH CANADIANS IN EVERY WALK OF LIFE SINCE 1852

Philip Getting Chance To Spread Good Word

By CANADIAN PRESS
Prince Philip's plea last July to improve the physical fitness of Canadians may have earned him an unpaid job on a committee set up to get the 1968 Winter Olympic Games for Banff, Alta.

It's up to him.

"We remembered his remarks made at Toronto when he told the Canadian Medical Association that Canadians aren't as fit as they might be, so we decided he might be able to do something about it," says Ed Davis, president of the Calgary Olympic Development Association. "The invitation is in the diplomatic mill now, or soon will be."

If the prince accepts, he would be on the external relations committee whose main duties would be to spread the gospel of Banff for the 1968 Games.

"Getting the Olympics in this country would probably make Canadians more conscious of physical fitness, and that's what Prince Philip preached."

PLEADS CASE

Davis, a 43-year-old consulting engineer and president of the association seeking Banff as the venue, pleaded his case before the Canadian Olympic Association last weekend. The COA backed up Alberta's bid a year ago and, if everything goes according to plan, Banff will be one of the sites considered by the International Olympic Committee in 1963.

One of the big drawbacks, Davis said, is getting access to the Canadian public that the Calgary association is deadly serious about staging the Games and that the cost of such an undertaking isn't comparable to the national debt.

"The man on the street asks where we are going to get the necessary $18,000,000 or $20,000,000 to pay for the Games. They say that's what it cost for the Olympics in Squaw Valley, Calif., and automatically figure our costs would be the same."

And that's where people are wrong. The Squaw Valley site was a wilderness and everything had to be built. It's a far different story for Banff.

The national park has hotels and other buildings that accommodate 11,000 persons. "There is a $50,000,000 investment in Banff and this is mostly idle in the winter months," said Davis. "We'd like to put that $50,000,000 to work."

Capital costs would be about $4,000,000. "We would need an Olympic centre, speed-skating oval, parking lot and an 8,000-seat arena. A 3,500-seat arena is planned for the next two years, and it means we would just have to increase capacity to 8,000 for the Games."

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

JOHNNY MATHIS

NEW YORK — "Whatever happened to Toots' Shor?" I asked Toots Shor.

The fat boy was wining and dining Prince Alexander Hohenlohe and the Princess (the former Honeychile Wilder of Macon, Ga.) at Romeo Salta's. In his courtly manner he addressed the Princess occasionally as "Your Highness, Lady Crumbum." It appears that an entire new deal is being made for Toots' next season to replace the one that closed with historical roof-raising last summer, and that all the wandering barflies will soon have a new home which will be very lush.

were greeted by their dolls with "You idiot! Who asked you?" Comedian Larry Daniels, first to use canned laughter in a cafe (as a gag), mentioned in defence of Elvis Presley that he's done more for American youth than anybody but Dillinger.

Dorothy Lamour phoned me from Baltimore. "Thanks for the mention, but the only living room I'm going into is my own, right in this house." The Sarong Sweetheart had been tentatively booked into the Living Room cafe. But she finally decided not to come out of the kitchen.

Henry Morgan's phone-answering device this week says: "Hi. This is a recording. I'm out of town. I'm not going to tell you when I'll be back, because you'll rob me. Keep in touch."

What excitement on 10th Avenue—Pretty blonde British actress Mary Ure was shooting a film in the nude at 20th Century-Fox studios.

Naked, yes, but in bed, with a cover over her. Somewhat different. 'Twas a special scene for "Sons and Lovers," and leading man Dean Stockwell'd flown from L.A. while director Jack Cardiff jetted from London.

Miss Ure was in a wrapper—and resting—when I got there. Her lie-in was lying in bed.

"How does one—ah—know that when you're in bed you don't—ah—have something on?" I asked. "Oh, when I'm in bed, I don't cheat. There's just"—she paused coyly—"me."

Anyway, that's the length they go to nowadays to sex up pictures. Miss Ure, who's in the B'way show, "Duel of Angels," with Vivien Leigh, said her working "shhchedule" is indeed "a bit much" but that she keeps going, thanks to taking lots of "vittamins."

The State Dept. wants to send "Music Man" on a Latin American tour... Abbe Lane showed off a huge new emerald ring at El Morocco, and said, "It's because I nag so, darling"...

Earl's Pearl: The young folks of today have the disadvantage of having too many advantages. —Pick Lamour.

Today's Best Laugh: They tell of the scientist who crossed a kangaroo with a horse, and what he got was great for cowboys who like to ride inside on rainy days.

Wish I'd Said That: Joe E. Lewis said he owed so much to the government on April 15 that he felt like a foreign power.

Wives of presidential candidates are often as anxious as their husbands to win—they've heard all about the closet space in the White House. That's earl, brother.

FISTS FLY OVER SALE OF ABATTOIR

TORONTO (CP)—A pearl brawl erupted at a meeting of the board of control Wednesday when a businessman who is bidding to buy the city abattoir was invited by controller Donald Summerville to "come out in the hall and fight."

J. L. Frankel called Mr. Summerville "a lush." First flew and Mayor Phillips walked out of the meeting room.

Mr. Frankel touched off the argument when he accused the controller of "political backscratching" in the impending award of the abattoir sale.

POSSIBLE, SAYS SCIENTIST

Atom Blasts to Dig New Panama Canal?

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Nuclear tests in a remote coastal area of Alaska could lead to atomic-created harbors and even a new Panama Canal, says Dr. John Wolfe of the United States Atomic Energy Commission.

He made the prediction at a press conference on "Project Chariot."

Four nuclear devices equal to 260,000 tons of TNT would carve a keyhole-shaped harbor near Point Hope on the Chukchi Sea, about 120 miles north of the Arctic Circle, Wolfe said.

The devices—the largest atomic-created harbors and equal to 200,000 tons of TNT and farthest inland—would be buried 400 to 700 feet deep.

The planned result of the simultaneous explosion: A harbor 300 yards long, 200 to 300 yards wide and at least 60 feet deep. The keyhole shape would allow ships to turn around.

If the test proved successful, the method might be used to create canals as well.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy. He will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and of the second question a Hammond's Atlas of the World.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Dennis Ray, aged 10, of Canton, N.C. for his question:

How Do Some Animals Manage Without Backbones?

Your backbone is made from a row of small bony rings called vertebrae. They are separated from each other by pads of gristle and stacked like a pile of saucers. Together they make a very strong support for the whole body. Since the whole backbone is made from a number of little bones, it is pliable. You can bend it.

Without this wonderful backbone, you could not stand up or walk around. Besides, it is the centre of the skeleton, which is the body's supporting framework. And the backbone has another job, which is just as important. The vertebrae are hollow rings and piled one upon another they leave a hollow tube down the centre of the spine. Through this tube runs the spinal cord. This is a cable of nerve cells which run to and from all parts of the body. The backbone props up the body and it protects the spinal cord, which is a part of the central nervous system.

Animals such as elephants, dogs, kangaroos, birds, frogs, lizards and the true fishes all have backbones very much like yours. They are called the vertebrates—those with vertebrae. But strange to say, most of the animals in the world manage to get along without backbones. These spineless animals are called the invertebrates.

A jellyfish has no backbone—no bones of any kind. This is also true of the starfish, the clam and the crab, the snail and the slug. Most of the invertebrates are small creatures, like the busy insects. A few large ones, such as the octopus and the giant squid, are found only in the sea. All these animals get along without a row of vertebrae to prop up the body and without a bony case to protect the spinal cord.

A big body needs a strong framework, but a small body can get along without one. An insect has no bones. His soft insides are encased and protected in a tough skin.

Works for Small Animals

This system works only for small animals. That is why no insect ever grows to be as big as, say, a cat. Invertebrates who live in the sea can overcome this handicap to some extent. The big octopus uses the water to buoy up his body and give him the support which we get from our bones.

Vertebrate animals are more highly developed than invertebrates. A bird, for instance, can do a lot more things than a snail can do. To do these extra things, he needs a more complex nervous system. A snail has a very simple nervous system. He can only do a few things and his body does not need many instructions from his nervous system. Most invertebrates have no brains and the central nervous system is a simple cord. They can manage, but they cannot grow very big and they cannot learn to do many different things.

Andy sends a Hammond's International World Globe to Billy Joe Ledford, age 10, of Gastonia, N.C., for his question:

Can we see stars that died long ago?

We see the stars from the light which comes to us. Though light is the fastest traveler known, it does take time to cover distance. It takes about one year to travel a distance of six million, million miles. The light from our sun travels at the same speed. The sunbeam that hits your nose started out from the sun some eight minutes ago.

The nearest star we can see north of the equator is Sirius, whose light takes more than eight years to reach us. When we look at Sirius, we see it as it was more than eight years ago. Some of the stars are hundreds of light years away. So we see them, not as they are, but as they were. If one of these stars disappeared, or more likely blazed up to become a big nova, we would not know about it for several hundred years. We would get the news only as fast as speeding light can carry it.

S.A. POLICE ORDERED TO 'FIRE AT LEADERS'

VEREENIGING, South Africa (Reuters) — A South African police captain testified Wednesday police standing orders were changed "late" — not to fire over the heads of a crowd but "to fire at the leaders."

Police Capt. A. G. Brummer was testifying at an inquiry into the police killing of 67 Africans at Sharpeville March 21.

Committee-level agreement between Canada and the United States on the proposed giant Columbia River development should be reached before the end of the year, Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said today.

But, Mr. Williston pointed out, even after the international negotiating committees of the two countries have reached agreement, the agreement still has to be ratified by the U.S. Congress.

LENGTHY BUSINESS

"And this could be a lengthy business," he said.

The agreement would also have to be ratified by Canada's parliament and the B.C. legislature, as the province affected.

"But this would not delay approval in Canada since any agreement would be based on policy jointly sanctioned by the respective governments beforehand."

Asked if there are many problems yet to be resolved between Canada and the United States, Mr. Williston replied:

"Yes and no. You talk around and get agreement on a circle and then you refine the circle."

Mr. Williston is a member of the B.C. team on the joint federal-provincial policy liaison committee. He said the giant Mica Creek dam will be built as part of the proposed billion-dollar Columbia River power development.

'WHAT'S ARGUMENT?'

"Mica is in," said Mr. Williston. "I don't know what the argument is about."

He said timing of the Mica installation would depend on agreement on other works in the project—but it would be built.

Mr. Williston said no date has been set for the next meeting of the joint federal-provincial policy liaison committee.

Joint Libby Project Proposed

WASHINGTON (CP)—Senator M. J. "Mike" Mansfield has urged that the controversial Libby Dam power scheme be undertaken as a joint Montana-British Columbia project symbolizing across-the-border friendship to remove Canadian objections to the original United States dam proposal.

But the Montana Democrat, Senate majority whip, emphasized in an interview that if Canadian objections persist, he won't allow his personal preferences to block Senate passage of a Canada-United States Columbia River power development treaty when and if one becomes ready for approval.

Though the Libby project was approved by Congress nine years ago, construction on the $325,000,000 proposal cannot start without Canadian consent since it would interfere with a boundary water, the Kootenay River, and would require flooding of some Canadian land.

Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, Canadian section chairman of the International Joint Commission, said recently the Libby plan would not be the most economical way of developing the waters involved and that it would freeze the Kootenay into a pattern of flow which would prevent the future diversion of its waters into the Columbia.

An independent survey conducted by an organization known as Resources of the Future tends to support McNaughton's view. In comparing the possible returns of various ways of developing the Columbia, the survey estimated that annual benefits in power and flood control from a Mica Creek project would be about $55,000,000 on an investment of $302,400,000.

Libby would return only $16,000,000 a year in benefits on an investment of $324,000,000. Developers could get an almost equivalent return—$15,700,000 a year—by developing the Arrow Lakes projects in the Columbia area at an investment cost of only $66,400,000, about one-fifth of Libby's needed outlay.

2 Women Charged As Bookies

(Compiled from CP)

VANCOUVER — Gambling squad detectives battered in three doors in a Haro Street rooming house Wednesday to uncover a "bookie joint" allegedly operated by a mother-daughter team.

Raiding officers said the establishment appeared to be a "very substantial operation." A 70-year-old woman and her 44-year-old daughter were charged with keeping a common gaming house. The daughter was also charged with recording a bet.

One detective said the betting establishment is the largest found here in many months.

NO SMALL PLANES

VANCOUVER — Airport manager William Inglis said Wednesday small private planes won't be allowed to use Vancouver International Airport when the new $14,000,000 terminal is built.

He said the grass which the small planes are now operating off will no longer remain when construction begins.

Attempts to get a secondary field for private craft have been unsuccessful.

FINED IN MISHAP

CLOVERDALE — A Prince George merchant has been fined a total of $45 and costs on charges arising from a traffic collision in which a University of B.C. student was killed.

William John Mahood was fined $35 and costs for driving without due care and attention, and $10 for driving without a licence.

Mahood's car collided head-on Jan. 7 with a sports car driven on a Surrey road by Bernard C. Barons of North Surrey. Barons died almost instantly.

LESSER CHARGE

VANCOUVER — A man who claimed he consumed 20 bottles of beer on the night before a gun battle with police was found not guilty Wednesday of three counts of attempted murder.

But the assize court jury of nine men and three women returned guilty verdicts against 21-year-old Gordon Lee Roy on charges of possessing a dangerous weapon, shooting a firearm to resist arrest and being in possession of a firearm without a permit.

He will be sentenced Friday by Mr. Justice T. W. Brown.

COAT-OF-ARMS

NELSON — Official presentation of Nelson's coat-of-arms will be made in Nelson, June 4, by Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

The coat-of-arms, bearing authority from the Royal College of Heralds of Great Britain, carry a design representing the city's historical and geographical background.

BIG FOREST AREA

DAWSON CREEK — The B.C. Forest Service is focusing special attention on 64,000 square miles of spruce forest in hopes of developing perhaps the most massive forest region in the province on sustained yield basis.

A. H. Dixon, district forester for Prince George, said here Wednesday over $270,000 is being expended on a special program this year to implement initial steps on long range plan of integrated resource development of Moberly Lake and Blueberry Mountain units west of Dawson Creek.

"SWEEP" SEIZED

VANCOUVER — Gambling squad detectives have seized Irish Sweepstake tickets valued at $2,000 in a raid on a city home. A total of 48 books, each containing 12 tickets, which normally sell for $3.50 each, were found in a room. The occupant, a 77-year-old pensioner, will be summoned on a charge of disposing of lottery tickets.

Annual First Aid Contest May 7

Eighteenth annual field day first aid competitions of the St. John Ambulance Brigade will be held Saturday, May 7, in Central Junior High School.

Five cups will be up for competition in the morning's junior events and seven cups for senior events to be held in the afternoon.

Public Works Minister Chant is scheduled to open the senior competitions at 1:15 p.m.

Provincial elimination contests is casualty simulation for entries south of Ladysmith will be held a week later, May 14, at brigade headquarters, 715½ View.

TV 'Sells' Paintings

NEW YORK (UPI) — A new aspect of the television age was inaugurated Wednesday night when 50 paintings and sculptures were auctioned in four cities simultaneously by means of closed circuit TV.

BABY FALLS 3 FLOORS BUT CAUGHT UNHARMED

SEATTLE (AP) — Two passersby dashed across a street here Wednesday and caught an 18-month-old boy who was pushed from a third-floor apartment window. Richard Hudson was unhurt except for bruises. His rescuers were Richard Taylor and David Fitzgerald.

The mother, Mrs. Ervin Sullivan, 20, said her daughter, Vicky, is "always throwing things out of the window."

A Great Night for the Scottish

A spectacular display of military training will be given by the Canadian Scottish Cadet Corps at its 16th annual inspection in the Bay Street Armories Friday night starting at 7:45 p.m.

The inspecting officer will be Lt-Col. P. F. Ramsay, commanding officer, the Canadian Scottish Regiment (Princess Mary's) who will be received with a general salute.

After the inspection there will be a march past in close column of platoons and in an advance in review order. The cadets will give demonstrations of first aid and stretcher bearing, recruit drill, map reading, light machine gun and rifle practice followed by a signals display.

Selections will be given by the Cadet Corps Pipes and Drums and there will be a display of Scottish country dancing by the pipers and drummers with students of Mrs. Adeline Duncan's Dancing School.

An innovation this year will be the presentation of Royal Life Savings Society certificates which have been won by Cadet Sgt. H. Deryk Smith, Cadet Cpl. Robert E. J. McPherson, Cadets Thomas C. Skimmer and Richard C. Sluggett.

The McDonald Trophy will be presented to the most improved and proficient cadet, and the Davies Trophy to the best rifle shot in the cadet corps.

Col. Ramsay will address the cadets at the close of the demonstration after which refreshments will be served in the Spare Mess, Room 314. "We hope and believe this will be the best inspection yet," says Capt. H. A. Davis, chief instructor.

HELICOPTER FIRM LOSES INSURANCE

OTTAWA (CP) — Autair Helicopter Services Limited has had six crashes in the last 16 months and the company's insurance has been cancelled twice, the Commons was informed Wednesday.

Transport Minister Hees gave the information to Lionel Chevrier (L. Montreal Laurier), who two weeks ago called in the House for an immediate investigation into the granting of a government licence and subsequent Arctic survey contract to Autair.

NEW THEATRE GROUP WINS BACKING

Drama in Old Firehall

A new theatre group, The Intimate Stage, has won support from Mayor Percy Scurrell in its bid to rent a vacant firehall this summer for two stage productions.

Tony Nicholson, director of the new group, applied to the city for a four-month lease of the old No. 2 firehall on Yates at Camosun beginning next month.

He said the group would present at least two productions with "a general appeal" during the period. Seating accommodation would range from 60 to 100.

Atmosphere of the old and vacant building apparently will have its attractions.

The boarded up windows will be "most satisfactory for our plans," he wrote. But the group would install necessary additional wiring and an outside fire escape. Seating for 60 to 100 persons would be installed.

The two productions would be staged in July and August which should "add greatly to Victoria's offerings to the tourists," Mr. Nicholson said.

Mayor Scurrell said he could see no objection to the proposal and favored it because "the more cultural groups we have that give training to your young people, the better it is for the city."

Piano 'Trio' Standard Tops In Play-Off

By AUDREY JOHNSON

If all had been winners, the three pianists in the performers' concerto class of the Victoria Music Festival could scarcely have been more evenly judged.

The event, which took place Wednesday night at St. Andrew's Hall, resulted in one of the special awards—the Henry Birks and Sons prize—going to Kenneth Bertram of Nanaimo, who gained a mark of 87. Tied as runners-up, with 86, were the other two entrants, Arla Smalley and Donna Galloway.

Adjudicator Boris Roubaikine was impressed with the achievement of all three; he has, in fact, expressed himself as delighted with the fine standard of piano playing throughout the festival.

There has been a number of closely contested classes and even such outstanding multiple winners as Sydney Bulman-Fleming (senior concerto, sonata, and Bach, 18 and under) have had the satisfaction of tight competition. Another impressive youthful contestant, David Foster, was recipient of the Sara E.

Spencer $25 award for piano sonata classes. David, in the 11 years and under category, gained one of the few 90s awarded so far in this festival.

Wednesday night's events drew capacity audiences, both in the social room and in the auditorium, where a group of junior—non-school—choirs charmed everyone including adjudicator Roy Hickman.

The prettily-costumed Wee Folks Glee Club, directed by Gladys Pearcey, range from around two to five years of age and were really something to see even if their music-making cannot be taken too seriously at the moment.

DELIGHTFUL TOUCH
Their presence adds a delightful touch to the session while the youngsters themselves are becoming acquainted with the idea of singing and being a part of the festival.

Winner of the class was St. Aidan's United Church Junior Choir, which was awarded a total of 172 marks. Only one mark, however, separated the runners-up, St. Paul's Junior Choir and the equal First United and St. Andrew's Presbyterian Juniors.

Among adult entrants, a hat trick was performed by baritone John Bray, with his third win, this time in male oratorio category. Wednesday afternoon Mr. Bray had already taken first place in male operatic and lieder classes.

IN ROSE BOWL
J. Ingram Smith book prize for operatic classes, however, was won by Peggy Walton Packard who, with an average mark of 89, was one up on Mr. Bray.

Detailed results follow:
Piano sonata class, 11 years and under: David Foster, 87; Ann Tracy, 178; Angus Arrol, 174. Eighteen years and under: Sydney Bulman-Fleming, 87; Kenneth Johnson, 86; Margaret McEwen, Susan Mason (equal) 85.
Piano, Bach, 18 years and under: Sydney Bulman-Fleming, 88; Phillip Adamson, Margaret McEwen (equal) 86; Norman Abbott, 85. Performers: Sharon-Duggan, 85; Arla Smalley, 83.
Piano, 18 years and under: Susan Mason, 85; Cathy Jeyes, 81. Duet, 15 to 18 years: Janice Hickman and Karen Dickson, 87.
Vocal classes: tenor solo, Grade B: Larry Lamoureux, 86. Bach sacred solo (any voice): Grade A: Margaret A. Dixon, 85; Terry French, 86. Folk song (any voice): Grade B: Mary Tate, 85; Evi Westinghouse, 84; Heather Pope, 84.
Mezzo soprano, Grade A: Margaret Thomson, 84; Marjorie Spiller, 81. Oratorio solo (male voices): Grade A: John Bray, 85; Allan Husband, 78; Norman Tyrrell, 84.
Boys' solo nine to 11 years: Ian Franklin, 85; Keith Jones, 85. Folk song, 17 to 21 years (any voice): Kins Riverby, 86; Barbara Oldsall, 82; Carole James, 81.
Piano Classes: 13 years and under: Beverly Brown, 175; Susan Pawcett, 169; Carolyn Best, 167. Nine to 12 years—Duet, Connie Pepper and David Foster, 178; Jean and Judy Gray, 175; Barbara Neufeld and Ellen Brown, 173.
Piano solo, 14 years and under: Cheryl Norris, 174; Gail Wall, 172; Nancy Johnston, 169. Thirteen years and under: Stuart Calder, 82; Antonia Adamson, 87; Carolyn Best, 86; Debbie Douglas, Beverly Brown (equal), 85.

ACCIDENT-PRONE INTERSECTION of Quadra and Fort — scene of a fatality last year — was the stage for another crash at 9.35 a.m. today. Occupants of the small car overturned at right were treated for shock and bruises at Jubilee Hospital. Police identified them as Mrs. Josephine Gardiner, 43, of 4585 Sumner, the driver, and her six-year-old daughter Mary. They drove west on Fort and were turning south onto Quadra when their car was struck broadside by a car driven east on Fort by Albert Rondeau, 1159 View, causing estimated $400 total damage.—(Robin Clarke Photo.)

Two Chiefs Run In Same Riding

Liberal Vs. Tory In N. Vancouver

Two party leaders who have never sat in the legislature will be pitted against each other in a constituency now represented by Agriculture Minister Steacy in the next provincial election.

Liberal leader Ray Perrault announced today he will seek election in the two-seat North Vancouver constituency now held by Mr. Steacy and former Social Credit leader J. Mel Bryan, now a Liberal.

Mr. Perrault, who has never contested a provincial election, will be pitted against Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson, who has never won one.

He will take the place of Mr. Bryan, who crossed the floor of the legislature to the Liberal benches and who now will seek federal nomination for Coast-Capilano.

He said in a statement today the North Vancouver election will enable all parties to have all their policies and views thoroughly discussed and analyzed.

Mr. Perrault said he would have run in Oak Bay if a by-election had been called to fill the vacancy created by the death of Liberal P. A. Gibbs shortly after the start of the last session of the legislature.

But now he believed that Premier Bennett will not call the by-election and that the next election will be held in the last week of September.

Mr. Perrault has never had a seat in the legislature.

Noon-Hour Fire Eats House Roof

Fire gutted a utility room and ate through the roof of a modern one-story home at 1403 Fairfield shortly before noon today.

City firemen laid 1,500 feet of hose from two hydrants. The alarm was received about 11:30 a.m. and two trucks responded.

The home is the property of D. A. Kirkland, at present in Honolulu. It was rented to an Anglican clergyman from Kamloops.

There was nobody home at the time of the outbreak.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known, but it was believed to have started from a trash burner in the utility room.

Province-Wide Dysentery Puzzles Health Officials

Provincial health officers are puzzled by a continued increase of bacillary dysentery throughout the province.

There have been 553 cases so far this year, of which 31 have occurred in Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich.

The last case reported in Victoria—a mild one—occurred last Monday.

There have been 133 cases in Greater Vancouver compared with 8 in 1959. Health officers say the disease affects persons of all ages and many have had to go to hospital.

"We do not know how it originates," an official said. "But it seems to travel from one person to another. It is not a virulent disease."

Bogus Bills Warning

RCMP warned today persons who have passed counterfeit American $20 bills in Quebec and Ontario may be moving west.

They said the bills are printed on paper that is thicker than that of genuine notes and are blurred and faded in appearance.

OXYGEN VITAL FACTOR

Away Into Space 'Very Soon Now'

Man will be in space "very soon now," a young space scientist predicted here today.

Dr. R. H. Lowry, 33, who is both an engineer as well as a medical man, said "I'll be very disappointed if I'm not up there myself."

The Canadian-born doctor heads the space medicine section, Aero Space Division, Boeing Airplane Co., Seattle.

His section works with the practical aspects of medicine in engineering design.

Dr. Lowry addressed the three-day convention of the western divisions, Canadian Anaesthetists Society today in the Empress Hotel at which more than 100 doctors were present.

Convention theme is "hypoxia," that is, lack of oxygen, which is a vital factor regarding manned space flight.

Dr. Lowry explained that oxygen in itself was not complex, but taken in consideration with space heat, vibration, toxicity and other factors in space it "is the most important thing."

"The machine is built around the man," he said, unlike many other engineering feats.

"Man is a mixture of organic and inorganic substances, and there are no two men the same. Whereas engineers deal with facts—they have a known effect from a cause—our doctors are dealing with preventive maintenance of man in space travel."

NEEDS A TEAM

There is no one man with all the knowledge necessary for space planning and only "the team" can make space flight actual, he said.

However, there is a field of scientific action now underway which relates in the individual as much co-ordinated knowledge as possible—as in Dr. Lowry's case. "He is a pilot as well as a medical man and engineer."

"The others in the team are specialists."

As a scientist, he said he had no concern with what Russia did in space as a "first."

He added "in this exotic environment, if somebody does it ahead of us, I'll wave a flag and clap my hands."

Dr. Lowry, well over six feet in height, looks like the public conception of an astronaut.

"I'll see you up there," he said.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Was Bentinck Island the only leper colony on the Pacific Coast or was D'Arcy Island in the Strait of Georgia also used for that purpose?—J.A.

A.—Lepers were kept on D'Arcy Island from 1891 to 1923-24 when they were moved to Bentinck until lack of victims led to closure of the centre about three years ago.

Q.—Is there an inscription on the bell which rings the hours for "Big Ben"?—A.K.S.

A.—No.

Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to dealers. Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

Speaking of hobbies . . . Stanley C. Hall tells me he has a collection of more than 200,000 cigarette cards at his home at 3200 Milgrove Street.

This type of collecting is known as cartophily. Mr. Hall says there are 100,000 of them in Britain although the practice of giving away cards with cigarette packages ceased in the last war and has never been resumed.

Cartophiles get most of their cards from junk stores and from private collections.

"We are always hoping the manufacturers will start issuing them again," says Mr. Hall, retired Victoria bank manager.

Further to Joe Lorrimer's anecdote about giving up smoking . . . George Hayhoe, 939 Caledonia, claims to have found the perfect antidote: Take a pinch of snuff whenever you crave a cigaret.

He says snuff-taking has cured him of the smoking habit but doesn't know yet whether snuff itself is habit-forming.

If it is, George, you'll have to smoke a cigaret whenever you feel the craving coming on!

So many letters about Bunter the Terrible . . .

D'Arcy Richard of Duncan remembers reading the Bunter stories "with a flashlight under the bedding long after the light in my room was officially out."

Jeannie Barr, RN, 5195 Rambler Road, R.R. 4, recalls both Billy Bunter and his sister Bessie who appeared in a companion girls' paper.

"Both were plump and greedy and I remember that Bessie once excused herself from work because she had housemaid's knee in the elbow," writes Miss Barr.

Alex Geddes, 1068 Tolmie, thinks these stories had much more "literary quality" than the junior fiction of today.

Festival Solo Climax At Friday's Concert

Piano and vocal classes in the Victoria Music Festival reach their climax Friday night with the honor program's summary of some of the cream of the week's performances.

A concert by award-winning singers and pianists selected by the adjudicators will only be part of the pleasure however.

Crowning excitement will be two traditional championship competitions—for pianists, the City of Victoria Medallion, and for singers, the Rose Bowl.

Both contests promise to be the most exciting of recent years for some exceptional performers have qualified to enter.

The public should note that this concert will take place at Central Junior High School auditorium, not St. Andrew's Hall. It will start at 8 p.m.

NAVAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

Saguenay, Ottawa, St. Laurent return 10 a.m. Friday.

Fraser, Margaret, Skeena return 4 p.m. Friday.

Beacon Hill returns 12 noon Monday.

Fortune, Cowichan, Miramichi, James Bay return Tuesday.

This affair however, does not mark the end of the festival which will continue next week with school choirs, bands and orchestras, folk dances, speech arts, instrumental and string classes occupying several centres.

Adjudicators William Cole, University of Washington, for bands; Gideon Grau, Vancouver, strings; Glyndwr Jones, Vancouver, school choirs, and Ann Mossman, speech, will arrive in the city over the week-end.

Hottest Day Of Year A Lovely 69

Victoria enjoyed its hottest day of the year Wednesday, with a temperature of 69 degrees, and according to weatherman William Mackie the present beautiful weather will prevail through Friday.

"There will be clear skies tonight and sunshine Friday, with a bit of high cloud by Friday evening," he said.

The mainland was warmer than Victoria, with temperatures of over 70 degrees in the Fraser Valley, and even to Tofino, on the west coast, matched Victoria's 69 degrees.

Just 30 miles farther north, however, Estevan Point reported a chilly 61 degrees, and in Lethbridge, Alta., the overnight minimum was 12 degrees.

Temperature here at noon today was 60 degrees. Minimum tonight will be 45 degrees, and the maximum Friday will be 60 degrees along the shore, and 68 degrees in more sheltered areas.

PLANT THEM

Present weather is plenty warm enough for planting a good many flowers and vegetables, according to William Goddard, a commercial grower in Strawberry Vale.

"If the soil is light, well drained, and has a good exposure, there is no reason why it shouldn't be planted," he said. "After all, if the planting fails, you have lost a few cents worth of seed. If it is a success, you are two weeks ahead."

He said, though that it is still too early for tender materials.

"Tomatoes, for instance, are sub-tropical, and should not go in yet," he said. "After all, it's not May yet!"

Hooves Clash With Base Hits In Park Pickle

City parks committee will have to decide between a horse show and a baseball doubleheader as Dominion Day attractions in Royal Athletic Park.

The dilemma occurred when Colwood Trail Riders and Victoria Amateur Baseball Association both made arrangements for using the park July 2.

The baseball group booked a Seattle club for the doubleheader and the horsemen's club booked a Washington State professional riding troupe for the clashing events.

Colwood Trail Riders have declined a suggestion by parks committee that they settle for Macdonald Park so "it looks like the committee will have to make a decision one way or the other," an official said today.

RELATIONS UNCHANGED ON CHANGE

City businesses and their customers are getting along reasonably well in the exchange of U.S. coins.

A spot check of city stores today revealed no serious friction with customers over the potentially thorny policy of discounting U.S. coins.

Canadian banks last week announced they would charge 2 per cent on coins. Banks said the move was necessary to curb an influx of U.S. coins, particularly in Eastern Canada.

In Victoria the survey showed:

1. No stores, hotels, motels, restaurants are refusing to accept the coins;

2. Most stores are discounting U.S. coins but some are accepting them at par for small purchases;

3. Some establishments are discounting neither U.S. paper nor coins but are turning them back to Americans;

4. Banks report no increase or decrease in the amount of U.S. coins handled.

Theft of Nails, Plywood Brings 4 Months Jail

Ex-lumber yard foreman Fernand LaRochelle, 1611 Denman, who pleaded guilty to stealing about $2,000 worth of plywood and nails between last Nov. 1 and April 12, was sentenced in city police court today to four months in jail.

Magistrate William Ostler noted many good factors in favor of the accused, including his co-operation with detectives investigating thefts of wood and about 100 kegs of nails from Doman Lumber Co. Ltd.

"But the object of punishment is the prevention of crime," he quoted from an Appeal Court judgment, "and I must consider the deterrent effect on others in your position . . ."

Defence counsel sought a suspended sentence in view of the previously good record and many favorable character witnesses. He said restitution was made.

Saguenay Dashes to U.S. On Mercy Run

The Esquimalt-based destroyer escort HMCS Saguenay made an unscheduled dash from the Cape Flattery area to Port Angeles Wednesday with two United States seamen from the radar picket ship USS Scanner aboard.

One of the men, electrical technician R. G. (Gordie) Bell of Seattle, was seriously ill.

The other, seaman Eugenio C. Peji, Philippine Islands, was put ashore because of illness in his family.

Saguenay was returning to home port after an operational cruise to the Far East in company with sister ships Ottawa and St. Laurent. Despite the fact she was almost home at the end of her mercy dash, Saguenay had to return to sea and rejoin the other destroyers, to finish off a scheduled and important squadron training exercise.

The three return to port at 10 a.m. Friday.

The commanding officer of USS Scanner, which is stationed about 250 miles west of Cape Flattery, thanked the Pacific Command with this message: "Your prompt attention and solution to our emergency problem is in highest traditions of naval service."

SHOPPING GUIDE

Help Garden Plants Grow With This Hormone Spray

By PENNY SAVER

Make sure that this year's tomato crop is largest ever by pepping up blossoms with some of the hormone spray that sells at 35 cents a package. Just add one level teaspoon to a gallon of water, spray, and you'll have tomatoes that any gardener would be proud of. Spray will also do wonders for beans, both string and lima, and later in the year will prevent pre-harvest drop if you spray fruit trees a week or two before picking time.

Warmth and color is added to kitchen when copper-bottomed pots and pans are hung where all can see them. But, what happens when copper begins to lose its gleaming brightness? One easy way to bring back original beauty is to use some of the instant copper cleaning powder that sells at 98 cents for a 16-ounce jar.

Powder will remove stains from bronze, stainless steel, nickel and chrome surfaces as well. Even difficult stains in porcelain sinks, bathtubs and on ceramic tiles will yield to cleansing powers of powder.

Article to be cleaned should be wet and powder added until a damp paste is formed. Wipe off, rinse thoroughly and your favorite pieces are as bright and shiny as ever. Powder is easy to use.

Mothers will know with what affection their teen-age daughters have taken to heart latest shoes that have "little" heels. For a girl that wants to look smart, yet still be able to walk comfortably, these heels are just what she's looking for.

Attractive shoes I saw this week had Hi-Fi heels, most popular of "little" types, and were fashioned from Deldi suede, which is really brushed leather. Toes had graceful Italian lines with dainty rosette net insert on the fan fronts.

Soft shades were femininely delicate and ranged from soft grey, beige, white, red, green, turquoise to tobacco brown. Price of these charmers is $8.95 a pair.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

It's Spring Cleaning Time—Throw Away Old Bulges

When doing your spring cleaning don't forget to throw away any old bulges which have been cluttering up your figure! Why not get rid of that spare tire around your waist which you have had for a long time and have been meaning to discard?

Remember that there is a lovely curve in every bulge. Remember that the curves of youth lie hidden beneath the fatty deposits of middle age! We just have to dig them out with diet and exercise. My Nine-Day Reducing Diet will reveal some of them in just nine days time.

During a longer slimming period you can take a few liberties with your calorie counting once in a while, but when you are following a short, effective diet like this one you cannot do so and be successful. However, you can add two level teaspoons of butter or margarine daily without damaging your happy results.

It always seems unappreciative when we are a guest at dinner or luncheon to refuse the good food which has been prepared for your pleasure. However, I feel sure that your friends will understand that you must be strict for just nine short days, only a little more than a week.

Here are the menus for tomorrow:
Menus for Friday:
Breakfast: One poached egg on toast, black coffee.
Luncheon: One medium hamburger cake (cooked without butter and made of lean meat), celery sticks, one glass skimmed milk, two raw carrots.

Dinner: Small lean steak, one-half cup cauliflower, one baked potato (no butter, medium-sized potato has only about 90 calories), one orange, one glass skimmed milk before bedtime.

If you would like to have my Nine-Day Diet booklet which gives you a loss of from five to 10 pounds in nine days, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

Grow Up, Son!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What kind of housework do you think a husband ought to do? I resent having to do a woman's work. It hurts my masculine pride.

The wife asks me to set the table, dry dishes and bathe the baby. I think husbands should do men's work and wives should do women's work. How do other husbands and wife combinations solve this problem?

ALL MAN: In homes where the husband's help is needed, a "real man" pitches in and does whatever is necessary to lighten his wife's load. (There are plenty of women who chop wood, haul trash and put up storm windows, and THEY don't whine about the injury done to their feminine pride.) It takes a REAL man, who has no doubts about his masculinity, to don a ruffled apron and bathe the baby.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is unusual. I am interested in a boy who will not ask me out because his parents disapprove of his dating a girl of a different religion. We are both mature college students. I feel that this boy's parents are exercising too much authority over him by trying to choose his friends.

How can I make him realize that the difference in our religions doesn't matter to me? I think a person's character is what is important—not his religion. His parents have no right to stand between us. Or am I wrong?

SERIOUS COED: DEAR COED: You are wrong. Even though the religious difference doesn't matter to you, it obviously matters a great deal to him. Yes, "character" is important—but if he defied his parents' wishes, he would not have the "character" you admire. Find a young man of your own faith with character and don't encourage this one to go against the wishes of his parents.

DEAR ABBY: We have a son who is six years old. He is at the age where he likes to play cowboys, but his father will not permit it. He says it is wrong for a boy to point a gun at people, and he will not allow guns in our house. When we get together with people who have children near the age of our son, they all play cops and robbers and our little boy has to sit in the corner. My husband's mother

TODAY'S RECIPE

Two eggs, well beaten; 1 cup sugar; 1 tsp. vanilla; ¼ cup softened butter; 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour; 2 tsp. baking powder; ¼ tsp. salt; 2 cups chopped figs; ¼ cup chopped walnuts; sifted icing sugar.

Gradually add sugar to eggs. Add vanilla and butter and mix well. Sift dry ingredients together. Add to egg mixture; blend well. Stir in figs and nuts. Pour into buttered 13x9x2-inch pan and bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees F. for 30 minutes. Dust with icing sugar while warm. Cool, then cut into diamond shapes. Yield: 1½ dozen.

Mrs. Douglas Leechman shows hat made of glass that she discovered in Victoria. Bulk of collection was found in eastern Canada and United States during years she and her husband lived in Ottawa.

Hats Modelled 200 Years Ago

BY PAT DUFOUR

Many women love to collect hats but it would seem safe to say that Mrs. Douglas Leechman has most unique collection in Canada.

Hers are of glass! The hats range from a diminutive "original" in vaseline green to large "toppers" in clear and opaque glass.

Mrs. Leechman has spent over 25 years searching for these collectors' items. Today, she has well over 40.

What started her on this unusual hobby?

"I remembered a tiny glass hat that my grandmother used to have on top of a corner dresser," she tells you. "One day I saw one just like it in an eastern store. I bought it and I've been searching for others ever since. My husband and I literally hunt rummage sales and antique stores!"

Surprisingly, Mrs. Leechman

finds Victoria almost devoid of her favorite pieces. "I've only one that was bought here. Glass hats never reached this far for the early pioneers didn't realize their worth. In the 1800's, when glass hats were first made, they were an inexpensive and common as glassware in five and ten cent stores today. So they didn't think they were worth the effort of packing and bringing with them."

IN MARITIMES Many early settlers in the eastern states and the Maritimes were glass blowers and it is in these places that a few hats can still be found. Ontario and Quebec, too, had a few small family firms that manufactured early pressed glass but, over the years, these have disappeared.

Name of "whimsie" to most women means a frivolous combination of net, sequins and, perhaps, a hint of mink, but for glass blowers this was the way they described objects like the hats that they made with oddments at the end of a day's firing.

"They'd often fashion a hat by using an inkwell as a mold for the crown, adding a brim later," Mrs. Leechman explains. "Most of them were shaped as top hats, although a little English one I managed to find is in style of old-fashioned beaver hat."

Whimsies, which included walking sticks as well as hats, were used by owners for match and tooth pick holders, for salt containers and as inkwells. Popular patterns included daisy and button, hobnail, diamond point and cane. Ruefully, Mrs. Leechman explains that only pattern she hasn't been able to get so far is the cane.

How do you tell an original from a reproduction? "Mostly by instinct," says Mrs. Leechman.

"In clear glass it is fairly easy to know an antique when you see it. Because of large amount of lead used in those days glass has a dull heavy look."

FORMULAS LOST

Amber color was achieved in vaseline hats by adding carbon blues and green by use of iron and deep blue by cobalt. Many of the formulas have now been lost and blue glass is especially difficult to reproduce. Mrs. Leechman has all these colors in her collection and many more in amethyst, cranberry and ruby red.

Also on the shelves in her Marne Street home are exquisite china hats from Germany, France, England and Wales. This collector misses companionship she enjoyed in a club of early American pressed glass collectors in Ottawa. "We used to take turns visiting each other's homes and seeing each member's prized possessions. Some of the arguments over pieces were wonderful! You see, it's so much more difficult to tell the period of glass than it is of china. Glass blowers didn't mark their pieces as did china craftsmen."

So far, Mrs. Leechman is still looking for one or more fellow collectors of glass hats in Victoria.

PLEA TO WOMEN

Make Politics a Hobby, Urges National Leader

Most important and best hobby a woman can develop is the study of politics, said Mrs. R. A. Kinnear, president of the National Federation of Liberal Women of Canada, at a meeting yesterday in Victoria.

Speaking to members of the Liberal Women's Forum and the Lady Laurier Club of Oak Bay before a tea-hour party given in her honor at Liberal headquarters, Mrs. Kinnear pointed out that "politics is the science of government."

"Show your interest by a comprehensive survey of the legislation brought in by our governing bodies," she urged. Mrs. Kinnear believes that women wield a tremendous influence behind the scenes. "Many a member of Parliament would not be where he is if it were not for the ability of the wife and mother to take over at home."

"We had women candidates in the field in the last election," she pointed out, "and we hope to have many women running in the next campaign."

Women are becoming fully conscious of their role in politics, Mrs. Kinnear believes. "They are an integral part of the political scene of Canada; they are willing to accept responsibility; they have stamina and endurance, and they enjoy the exciting experience that comes in the political field."

Mrs. R. A. Kinnear on brief visit

In her visits to Liberal women's groups across Canada, Mrs. Kinnear is stressing the need "for all branches of Liberal organization to work as a team."

"We have the long view of Canada's future," she said, "and we hope for its development by Liberal leadership." The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Davidson and thanked by Mrs. D. A. MacDonald.

Rose Arch, Banners, Flowers On Wedding Procession Route

LONDON (Reuters)—Scheduled for a full beauty treatment before the wedding day of Princess Margaret and Antony Armstrong-Jones on May 6, is the route of the royal procession to and from Westminster Abbey.

A graceful rose arch will span the Mall between Buckingham Palace and Clarence House, the princess' residence.

Seventy tall masts along the route will fly white banners with the monogram "MA" for Margaret and Antony on a red rose.

Twelve masts in Parliament Square, the site of Westminster—will be hung with baskets of pink hydrangeas and yellow marguerites. White, red and gold flowers blossoming in public flower beds and window boxes will line the route, with special guards and regimental bands at various points.

Ancient Westminster itself, for the first time in centuries, will glow in its original richness and glory.

Workmen have been engaged since the coronation in 1953 on a 12-year task to clean away the grime and candle grease of centuries. The full job of renovation will be completed in 1965 when Westminster celebrates its 900th anniversary.

Efforts are being made to see that the choir, transepts and the eastern bays of the nave are gleaming for the wedding as they did in the 13th century.

The cost of the cleaning and repair is financed by a £1,000,000 ($2,670,000) fund raised by an appeal from wartime prime minister Sir Winston Churchill.

Guests at the wedding will see the splendid Gothic mouldings of the choir look as they did when Henry III's builders laid down their tools.

STONE CREAM COLORED The cleaning has brought out the original cream color of the abbey's stone, the marble columns have been scrubbed down with pumice stone and the roof repaired.

Scot Wins Right To Stay

COURTENAY — David Hume McGarvie, local Scotsman who accused immigration officials Wednesday with "playing ping pong" with his life, has been granted permission to remain in Canada as an immigrant.

The immigration department said in Ottawa today that McGarvie has been granted the status of a landed immigrant.

The Canadian Army Korean War veteran came to Canada from San Francisco in 1949 and was ordered deported two years ago because he had not entered the country as an immigrant. He was granted a permit to remain in Canada on a temporary basis and received an extension which expired April 21.

McGarvie had declined a permit extension on grounds that it offered him no sense of security.

McGarvie, his Canadian wife and five children are living in a motel at Courtenay.

'Better Civic Government' Chief Named

ALBERNI — Hartley Haynes was elected this week as chairman of the new Alberni Voters' Association, formed to "encourage better civic government" and to support council candidates who will give progressive government.

Formation of the group made no mention of current troubles in Alberni city council, but it came on the heels of deadlocks between Mayor Mabel Anderson and council over several issues, a threat by Ald. Fred Bishop to resign, a complaint by city clerk James Sawyer that his position is "untenable" and a statement by an alderman that the council is a "laughing stock."

Capt. Barbour Rescue Chief For West Coast

OTTAWA (CP)—Appointment of marine rescue co-ordinators for the east and west coasts was announced Tuesday—the first step in a government program for improving the efficiency of air-sea rescue operations.

Capt. J. C. Barbour of Vancouver will be co-ordinator for the west coast, with headquarters in Vancouver. His east coast counterpart will be Capt. Dr. B. Stanton of St. John's, Nfld., operating from Halifax.

Both are with the transport department's marine services branch. Capt. Barbour is a veteran of wartime service with the Royal Canadian Navy and Capt. Stanton, former RAF squadron leader, helped organize search and rescue operations in India and Burma during the Second World War.

'Blue Uniform and Cap Only Similarity'

Only similarity between police and firemen "is their blue uniform and peaked cap," the president of the B.C. Association of Professional Fire Fighters, said Wednesday.

Eric Simmons, made the statement in opposing a Saanich council proposal to use firemen for some police duties.

Lorne Shandley, president of the B.C. Federation of Peace Officers also opposed the move. Both men said various forms of police and fire department integration have been tried in North American cities and dropped as failures.

Both also pointed out that the integrated system in Esquimalt would not work if the naval fire department did not provide an "on call" service to the municipality.

The Saanich council proposal would make firemen responsible for: supervising school road safety patrols; checking vacant houses; checking commercial premises at night, and serving summonses.

The change was suggested by Reeve George Chatterton as a cost-saving measure following an 11 per cent wage increase to police and firemen by an arbitration board.

Mr. Simmons said it was up to Saanich residents to tell council whether or not they would be satisfied with the protection they would get if firemen were shifted to police work.

"If off-duty firemen were doing police work, what would happen in the event of a major blaze, such as the Crowe-Gonason mill fire?"

"At times like that every-man is needed, and is called out. Where would they be found if they were out serving summonses, for example?"

'Disastrous'

He said Reeve Chatterton was relying on the mutual aid system under which "already undermanned" outside fire departments would enter Saanich to give assistance.

Mr. Simmons said a study ordered by the Federation of Mayors and Municipalities in 1958 showed that while some administrative integration was possible between police and fire departments, there should be no reduction in trained fire fighters or "momentary economies" might bring "disastrous" results.

"A combined police and fire-fighting force is possible in Esquimalt only because the department of national defence provides fire protection for the municipality on call from the Esquimalt department, which is not equipped either in men or machines to do the job," Mr. Simmons pointed out.

"Besides the naval firemen, Esquimalt can count on help from Victoria's bigger department."

"All of this means that the taxpayers of Canada are helping to pay for fire protection in Esquimalt."

Second Class

"If the citizens want this integration, all we can say on the basis of authorities on police and fire services in Canada, is that they must be prepared to accept second-class service."

"There will be no savings whatever."

"This has been proved conclusively in other areas where integration has been undertaken and finally rejected as unworkable."

Mr. Shandley pointed out that in 1949 the police and firemen of B.C. voluntarily gave up the right to strike in return for arbitration of unsettled wage disputes.

"Now we find councils attempting to emasculate us from even this position, and leave us with no bargaining rights. This we intend to oppose."

"Speaking of the arbitration award, did the procedure have no shortcomings last year, as compared with this? We accepted the 1959 award with reservations, but did not go crying to the press about it."

"We would like to inform the public that each year for many years we have submitted as possible board chairmen the names of many men widely renowned in labor-management disputes for their impartiality and legal training."

'Light' Duties

"Each year the city has rejected these names."

"We have come to the conclusion that impartiality is the last thing wanted by the city."

"At boards in the past, police duties have been described as little more onerous than helping elderly ladies across the street."

"Now we find that in a period of less than nine months, two police officers have been killed on active duty in the Greater Victoria area. Can this situation be shown in any other city this size or larger in Canada?"

"Several years ago a city police officer was seriously wounded. He receives a pension cheque of less than $15 a month."

Belong to Navy

The police union view expressed by Mr. Shandley backed up Mr. Simmons' comments and criticized council attacks on the unions.

Mr. Shandley said "It is about time the citizens realized" that the new fire trucks operating in Esquimalt belong to the navy. The municipality owns only one second-hand truck purchased from Victoria.

Pacific Quakers Appeal Against Germ Warfare

Quakers from many parts of the Pacific Northwest meeting in Vancouver recently decided to appeal to heads of government in Canada and the United States for cessation of preparations for germ and chemical warfare.

Attending the half-yearly meeting were delegates from Victoria, Vancouver, Duncan and Vernon. Others came from Seattle, Tacoma and Everson, Washington, and Missoula, Montana.

Stanley and Clara Shaw of the Tacoma group are to attend a meeting of World Citizens in Geneva prior to the summit conference.

Western RED CEDAR Bevel SIDING "Keystone" clear kiln dried siding is the finest available—a quality material for all applications where perfection is required. With its "grow-in" workability, weather resistance and lasting good looks, "Keystone" clear Western Red Cedar Siding has long been recognized as the standard of quality home construction. It has a distinctive "shadow line" which enhances any architectural style in any setting, and is used to create a variety of interesting decorative effects on indoor surfaces as well as exterior. 5 GRADES TO CHOOSE FROM! "FOREST" CEDAR SIDING WHAT IS FOREST SIDING? Made of dry 1½" stock in 10 and 12-inch widths. "Forest" siding is a new type of siding obtained from specially selected cedar logs sawed to show the beauty and character of knots, burls, etc. APPEARANCE? For homes and buildings where a distinctive and pleasing appearance is desired. The design of "Forest" siding ensures a tight weather seal at the lap which together with its thickness and finish-to-base principle makes excellent material from the INSULATION standpoint. HOW IS IT APPLIED? As easily and quickly as common shingles. Each piece of "Forest" siding fits snugly over the one below and requires only one mitre cut. HOW CAN IT BE FINISHED? If a natural finish is desired, use equal proportions of raw linseed oil and any well-known brand of waterproof sealer. This not only protects the wood surface, but also brings out the natural beauty of the knots and grain. If a covered finish is desired, "Forest" siding can easily be painted. It is recommended that a sharp instrument be used to score the finished product underneath the butt (where it will not show) to stop formation of a vapor barrier.	WHERE TO GET IT!	"RANCH-PANEL" The handsome new siding designed to give "NEW" natural beauty to your home, inside and out! ONE LOOK—and you'll want to "RANCHPANEL" RIGHT AWAY! You'll want to be first to "RANCHPANEL" your home the very moment you get your first look at this distinctive new siding. Sawed from specially selected cedar logs and graded to accentuate the naturally beautiful markings of British Columbia cedar, new "RANCHPANEL" provides a delightfully different, unmistakably modern look wherever it's used. NEGRO STUDENTS MARCH

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP)—White and Negro college students who failed in an attempt to negotiate an end to lunch counter segregation marched in a mile-long picket line through the centre of the Texas state capital Wednesday.

"We want more than a cup of coffee. We want dignity," said a placard carried by one Negro co-ed.

HELP WIDOWS, PLEADS MINISTER

Police Salute Kirby At Impressive Service

By AB KENT

An Anglican Church minister made a plea for the widows and children of police slain in the line of duty when he conducted the service Wednesday at the funeral of Const. Robert Kirby, shot by a mental patient Sunday night.

The simple but impressive service for the 31-year-old Saanich police constable was one of the largest police funerals ever seen here, with more than 225 people present in Sands Mortuary Chapel.

Rev. Jack Rogers, of St. Michael and All Angels Anglican Church, West Saanich Road, spoke after reading from Scripture, noting "It is not customary for a clergyman to speak."

"I feel on this occasion that one should break a little bit from custom... and take the opportunity to say a few things."

"You have come to pay your respects to one who gave everything he had in that work which he had undertaken. Everyone realizes the work of a policeman has certain dangers and responsibilities connected with it, but that does not alter the fact that today we honor one, who in the service of his labors, has given his life. No man can do more.

'Hope I'm Wrong'

"I don't know whether I should say this or not. I am speaking from hearsay... I was told today that there is no compensation when a policeman gives his life in the performance of his duty."

"I think that is wrong. I hope I'm wrong..."

"If I'm right, I hope you will make it your responsibility to see that this wrong is righted."

"I hope you will remember in your prayers the wife and children who have difficult days ahead of them."

(It was indicated Wednesday by a government source that Mrs. Dorothy Kirby, widow of Const. Kirby, would be eligible for $230 a month compensation.)

The clergyman was heard largely by men in uniform.

Navy Tribute

The entire Saanich police department of 22 men, including plainclothesmen, was there while off-duty volunteer city police attended law enforcement in Saanich with the assistance of an Oak Bay patrol car.

Also at the funeral were 100 others including a 30-man naval division in honor of Kirby's five years of service with the RCN, in which he was a petty officer at 19.

City police sent 46 men for a formal procession and seven others; the RCMP was represented by 12 men in formal scarlet; Esquimalt and Oak Bay police departments each had 10 men in uniform; army provost corps had six men and Central Saanich police, the area's smallest department, sent three men.

Chapel Parade

Greater Victoria chiefs of police, deputies, Saanich police commissioners, Crown prosecutors and representatives of the navy, army and Legion Frontiersmen served as honorary pallbearers.

When police and servicemen paraded from the chapel into the square adjoining the funeral home, a brilliant afternoon sun glittered on their buttons.

The men were bargeheaded in two long files, facing inward, and the flower-decked casket was carried to the hearse by Saanich police officers Det. Robin Stewart, Det. George Walton, Juvenile Officer D. E. Anderson, Cpl.

'Shift' System At Junior Highs In District 63

A shift system for junior high school students will be introduced in September in school district 63 because of overcrowded classrooms.

James D. Helps, chairman of the rural school district, also said Tuesday there would be a student reshuffle in schools.

Royal Oak Junior-Senior High School will be made a senior high serving students in the Royal Oak-Mount Newton area, he said.

In line with this plan Mount Newton Junior-Senior High School will be made a junior high school for the same area.

He added that classes at the junior high will be placed on a double shift system, with complete "school days" in the mornings and afternoons.

Mr. Helps said the school district would also need at least five additional teachers.

JOBLESS STUDY COMPLETED THIS SUMMER

VANCOUVER (CP)—A two-year study of British Columbia unemployment by the B.C. Research Council will be submitted to Labor Minister Wicks this summer, it was reported here Wednesday.

The probe, with particular emphasis on seasonal declines in the working force was ordered by the legislature's standing committee on labor in 1958.

The council, a non-profit organization with members drawn from government, the University of B.C., and industry, received assistance from the federal government on the project. An interim report submitted last year was not made public.

The province will pay a total of $500,000 for the job.

J. B. Thwaites, an economist who is director of the project, says the study will be completed by mid-summer.

Final Salute

After the hearse came three more cars with members of the family and relatives, and dozens of private cars added to the procession to Royal Oak Burial Park.

Buses carried members of the foot procession to Royal Oak for a brief graveside service by Mr. Rogers.

With the marchers standing in a huge semi-circle around the grave and the minister, pallbearers and family senior officers each stepped forward and paid respect to the young constable with a final salute.

5 SENTENCED TO DIE IN MOROCCAN TRAGEDY

RABAT, Morocco (Reuters)—Five of 24 defendants accused of making 10,000 Moroccans ill and paralyzed by selling adulterated cooking oil were sentenced to death here Wednesday.

Three of the accused, most of whom were grocers, were sentenced to life imprisonment.

The men have been on trial since April 11. The oil they sold was adulterated with surplus aircraft engine oil sold by the United States Air Force.

LABOR BACKS NEW PARTY

'A Milestone In Politics'

MONTREAL (CP)—In a bedlam of boisterous zeal, Canada's labor movement Wednesday night solidly sanctioned the creation of a new left-of-centre political party.

With hardly a handful of opponents, some 1,600 trade union officials voted overwhelmingly to give the Canadian Labor Congress a mandate to work with the CCF toward the new party.

The CCF is expected to add its formal support when it meets later this summer in Regina.

After that, a founding convention of all interested parties—labor, CCF, farmers and other "liberally minded" people—is to be called, probably for early in 1961 in Ottawa, in time to get into the next federal election.

BOISTEROUS WINDUP

Shouting, singing and cheering, the delegates to the week-long CLC national conference broke up their political action debate after a 9½-hour discussion.

There was a sense of history in the air as they flung thousands of pieces of torn paper over their heads when the results of the vote were evident. Delegates thumped each other's backs and broke into "Solidarity Forever."

About 25 delegates opposed the CLC move to create the new party and another 40 unionists—all members of the 30,000-member International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers—walked out of the debate. They contended the new party would be "detrimental" to the advancement and welfare of their union.

They adopted a "position of neutrality" concerning the formation of the new party and

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—President Charles de Gaulle Wednesday visited the city where the United Nations was born and heard himself described as "the living patriot symbol of France."

Responding, de Gaulle told a crowd at city hall that the "magnificent reception" accorded him by the people of San Francisco was proof to all the world of the friendship of France and the United States.

The French president was guest of honor Wednesday night at a dinner attended by 4,000 San Franciscans. Today he visits a hospital and electronics factory at Palo Alto, Calif.

TICKET-TAPE PARADE

"Vive de Gaulle" rang through this city's streets, where the UN was organized, 15 years ago, as the French president rode bareheaded beside Mayor George Christopher. Following a ticket-tape parade through the business district, the procession wound up at the city hall.

During the tumultuous years of the Second World War Mayor Christopher declared, "Charles de Gaulle and his Cross of Lorraine were France! Today, as president of the Fifth Republic, General de Gaulle is again the living patriot symbol of France."

De Gaulle responded in a voice thick with emotion. He said he could "see a lesson in the warmth of the welcome."

"The torch of freedom has crossed between France and the United States through history," he said, "carried by Lafayette, de Grasse, by Pershing and by Eisenhower."

600,000 CHINESE HAIL SYNGMAN RHEE'S FALL

PEKING (Reuters) — Some 600,000 Chinese gathered in a square before Peking's gate of Heavenly Peace today for a demonstration in support of the overthrow of Syngman Rhee's South Korean regime.

"American imperialism out of Korea" was among the slogans shouted by the banner-waving crowds. (See page 3.)

Youths Hail Korea Action

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Thousands of students rioted against the government today in the streets of Istanbul and Ankara and the government imposed martial law to prevent another Korea.

Three students were reported killed in Istanbul and scores wounded when police fired into their midst after tear gas, warning rifle volleys and charges by mounted police failed to break up the demonstrations.

The crowds retaliated by stoning police and several were reported injured, three seriously.

The rioting quickly spread to Ankara, the nation's capital, and there were demands that Premier Adnan Menderes resign. He cancelled a trip to a conference in Tehran because of the crisis.

The fighting in Istanbul started at Istanbul University and spread to Beyazit Square where mounted police moved in on the students only to be met by cunning and more violence.

Many youths surged forward and poked lighted cigarettes into the horses' flanks, causing many animals to plunge and rear. Some horses bolted, throwing their police riders to the ground.

One of the mounted officers who fell after being hit by a stone was trampled by the mob and injured seriously.

The police were armed with pistols and tommyguns but eyewitnesses said they held their fire until the students began stoning and trampling them.

There were cries of "Freedom! Freedom!" and "Murderous police!" Others screamed:

"Menderes resign!" "Government resign!"

The students also shouted slogans of approval for Korean youth who died in riots which led to the resignation of President Syngman Rhee.

LOUISIANA DEAN FREED IN SLAYING

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — George Mickey, former Louisiana State University dean, was a free man today, but he was a teacher without a school.

District Attorney J. St. Clair Favrot Wednesday withdrew a murder warrant that charged the 50-year-old scientist with the bludgeoning slaying of Dr. Margaret Rosamond McMillan, a woman faculty member.

The district attorney's action came shortly after it was disclosed Mickey had voluntarily resigned from the LSU faculty. University President Troy Middleton had relieved Mickey of his duties as dean after he was jailed. Later the geneticist was demoted to a professorship but kept on the payroll.

His republic's pastoral economy was being disturbed. The gold mines were becoming the focus of British and international finance. Kruger recognized the danger to his republic and took drastic restrictive measures.

When peace came, the treaty contained no safeguards for the overwhelming black masses in the country. In fact, the British backed away from the relative leniency they had taken toward Negroes in the Cape colony. They promised there would be no change in the political status of Africans before the Boer republic achieved self government.

TOO LATE
When self government came, the racialists were again in power and it was too late. A "whites only" parliament was assured.

Out of their despair a few politically-minded Negroes formed a South African native congress in January, 1912. It became the African National Congress.

Now, in the golden anniversary year of the union, it has been outlawed for planning "a massive revolt."

The discovery of gold on Witwatersrand (White Water Ridge) brought hordes of eager Britons and foreigners into the Transvaal, dominated by Paul Kruger, president of the South African Republic as it was known then.

The Union of South Africa became a reality in 1910. It joined the two British colonies of Cape Province and Natal with two Boer republics, Orange Free State and Transvaal. That followed more than a century of uneasy rivalry between British and Dutch

Diefenbaker Steps Softly In Debate on Apartheid

DETECTIVES START PROBE

Soccer Scandal Hits U.K.; Games Fixed?

LONDON (AP) — British sports fans, already scandalized by a doping conspiracy on the horse race tracks, today got another shock as police probed allegations of "fixed" matches in the English Soccer League.

Detectives talked to five players of Oldham Athletic, English League team, about alleged conversations on "throwing" games.

"I was told by some players about conversations concerning the outcome of matches," Oldham manager Norman Dodgin said. "I immediately informed the police."

A police spokesman said a dossier on the whole matter was being prepared. "It is still under review and inquiries are proceeding," the police added.

Oldham Athletic is at the bottom of the Fourth Division in the league and must apply for re-election to the league next season. Clubs vote to decide whether the bottom team in the division stays in the competition.

Editor Executed?

NICOSIA, Cyprus (UPI) — Police detectives today investigated widespread reports that kidnapped newspaper editor Antonis Pharmakides had been executed Monday night on "treason" charges by a secret "people's court."

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, backed solidly by Parliament Wednesday in his avowed hatred of racial discrimination, leaves today for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London and the inevitable discussion of South Africa's apartheid policy.

He goes, he said, with the belief that racial discrimination is the forerunner of tyranny and then of ultimate change by force.

He said Canada and the other Commonwealth governments should approach the South African situation by exercising "an influence of moderation" and by revealing steadiness and restraint.

"I could do the popular thing," he told the Commons. "I could denounce. I could follow the course of least resistance. But denunciation of what I hate would not achieve what we desire should be achieved—the ending of a policy that cannot succeed."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he has no doubt that the apartheid policy and its repercussions in South Africa will be included in the informal discussions at the London conference, opening May 3.

He added: "One of the greatest hopes I have for an ultimate settlement is that South Africa has not withdrawn itself from the Commonwealth and the fact that it will be represented in London at the prime ministers' conference."

"This assures that the channels of informal communication have not been closed."

'South Africa May Drive Herself Out'

Mr. Diefenbaker also leaves Ottawa after hearing the contention of Opposition Leader Pearson that South Africa "may drive herself out of the Commonwealth by forcing a choice between her policies and the views of other members."

There must be a change in South African policy "for the events of recent weeks will be nothing to what will happen in the months ahead," Mr. Pearson said. "There are deep, dark forces at work which may soon sweep away the chances of any settlement based on reason and justice."

Mr. Diefenbaker's own stand for a moderate approach to the South African situation was underlined by External Affairs Minister Green, who also leaves Ottawa today to attend a meeting of the NATO Council in Istanbul.

"It is not the Canadian way to go to extremes of one kind or another," Mr. Green said. "The reputation we have among nations of the world is a reputation for a cool-headed attitude, and not for rushing off after this mirage or after another mirage and getting all excited and making fantastic statements."

At the time, Mr. Green was replying mostly to CCF criticisms that Canada had not been outspoken enough on the South African situation. Previously, CCF House Leader Hazen Argue had called for a formal diplomatic protest and a Canadian boycott of South African goods.

'Villainous and Perilous'—Winch

The Socialist party's position in the Commons Wednesday was no less vigorous in its condemnation of apartheid but, as expressed by Harold Winch (CCF, Vancouver East) in Mr. Argue's absence, it contained few of the arguments advanced earlier.

Mr. Winch described apartheid as "not only villainous but perilous." It was tantamount to dictatorship. He called on Europeans in South Africa to "recognize the insanity of apartheid and the need to come to terms with the situation by being prepared to negotiate with the African leaders and not to jail them."

"The apartheid policy cannot be made to work without poisoning the whole continent of Africa and without causing a violent upheaval which could endanger the whole world."

Mr. Diefenbaker, last speaker in the debate, said that after hearing all party representations Continued on Page 2

KIRBY FUND PASSES $5,000

Citizens' donations to Mrs. Dorothy Kirby, widow of Saanich Cons. Robert Kirby, soared over $5,000 today and were still coming in strong.

The officer was shot by a mental patient during a hunt for the man Sunday night and was buried with full police honors Wednesday. (See page 36.)

Money given by sympathetic citizens of Greater Victoria will supplement a $5,000 insurance policy and $230 monthly pension from Workmen's Compensation Board to provide for Mrs. Kirby and four small children.

Little League Baseball officials announced that all proceeds from Sunday games at Little League Park and Layritz Park would be donated to the fund.

Students of Royal Oak High School have volunteered to take a collection for the fund, and a special benefit day Saturday is planned by Nick Graham, of Island View Beach resort, site of go-cart racing.

Proceeds from the event and from a Sunday draw on a go-cart will be given to Mrs. Kirby.

Wednesday afternoon, seven young friends of the dead policeman sold flowers at four cents bunch from a roadside stand on Derby. They turned $3 over to the fund.

The children were Virginia Milligan, eight; Deborah Mason, seven; Diana Pearce, seven; John Graham, six; Derek Mason, five; Robbie Pearce, five, and Jim MacKay, seven.

B.C. LABOR APPEAL

Unemployed Aid Urged on Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor (CLC) announced today it has requested the federal government to take emergency measures to help unemployed workers and their families in the province.

Releasing a brief presented Wednesday to Labor Minister Starr, the 130,000-member federation called for a moratorium on all mortgage debts of the unemployed and urged an immediate federal program of public works.

The brief also urged education and retraining of excess or unskilled workers; continuation of unemployment benefits during the whole period of a workers' unemployment; and federal establishment of minimum rates of social assistance payments.

"Our provincial government optimistically refuses to acknowledge its 100,000 unemployed citizens," continued the brief. "Many people are losing their homes and many more are living in sub-standard conditions."

There had been a chronic state of unemployment for the last three years in B.C., and the situation was especially serious on the lower mainland.

"B.C. with its few basic export industries, is the worst example of increasing production growth with less than adequate employment growth."

SPECIAL TIMES FEATURE

The Story Behind South Africa

In this, the second of four articles on South Africa, a veteran AP foreign correspondent recalls the days of the discovery of gold and of the Boer War.

BY LYNN HEINZELING
JOHANNESBURG (AP) —

South Africa is celebrating 50 years of union this year but only a fifth of the population has anything to celebrate.

Three million whites can look around them and see a nation pulsating with economic vigor, abounding in gold, diamonds, coal and a black labor force to mine them.

But looking out from their drab and strictly segregated surroundings, 12,000,000 Negroes, Indians and colored peoples of mixed races see constant discrimination and no future.

Fifty years of union for them has meant an improved literacy rate and a gradual move toward the white man's civilization. But with these have come stricter segregation and tighter controls on movement.

TRADITIONAL KRAALS

Slightly more than a third of the 10,000,000 Negroes live in their traditional kraals in reserves, another third on the farms of white farmers, the remainder in shabby and rigidly demarcated townships around the cities and towns.

The white man's anniversary picture is marked with deep shadows, African nationalism, rolling down the continent from the north, finally has touched this bastion of white supremacy.

The Union of South Africa became a reality in 1910. It joined the two British colonies of Cape Province and Natal with two Boer republics, Orange Free State and Transvaal. That followed more than a century of uneasy rivalry between British and Dutch settlers which finally exploded in the Boer War, 1899-1902.

This was a bitter struggle in the veldt. It left a legacy of hate and suspicion which the Boers, or Afrikaners, never have been able to suppress completely. They still talk of the concentration camps erected by the British for Boer prisoners. They tell of farms burned and cattle slaughtered needlessly.

And now with Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd recovering from two bullet wounds inflicted by an assassin of English descent, there is one more black mark in the book.

Broadly, the causes of the Boer War lay in huge gold deposits discovered in the Transvaal near the close of the 19th century and in British determination to unify the sprawling, unwieldy administrations of the two British colonies and the Boer republics.

The discovery of gold on Witwatersrand (White Water Ridge) brought hordes of eager Britons and foreigners into the Transvaal, dominated by Paul Kruger, president of the South African Republic as it was known then.

His republic's pastoral economy was being disturbed. The gold mines were becoming the focus of British and international finance. Kruger recognized the danger to his republic and took drastic restrictive measures.

When peace came, the treaty contained no safeguards for the overwhelming black masses in the country. In fact, the British backed away from the relative leniency they had taken toward Negroes in the Cape colony. ACCIDENT-PRONE INTERSECTION of Quadra and Fort — scene of a fatality last year — was the stage for another crash at 9:35 a.m. today. Occupants of the small car, overturned at right were treated for shock and bruises at Jubilee Hospital. Police identified them as Mrs. Josephine Gardiner, 43, of 4585 Sumner, the driver, and her six-year-old daughter Mary. They drove west on Fort and were turning south onto Quadra when their car was struck broadside by a car driven east on Fort by Albert Rondeau, 1159 View, causing estimated $400 total damage. — (Robin Clarke Photo.)

Two Chiefs Run In Same Riding

Liberal Vs. Tory In N. Vancouver

Two party leaders who have never sat in the legislature will be pitted against each other in a constituency now represented by Agriculture Minister Steacy in the next provincial election.

Shooting Neglect Queried

A coroner's jury will have to decide next week whether officials of Colquitz Mental Home were negligent in connection with the fatal shooting of a Saanich police constable last Sunday.

An inquest Wednesday into the death of Constable Robert Norman Kirby, 31-year-old Saanich policeman, killed while attempting to capture mental patient Raymond Harold, was adjourned until next Wednesday after Acting Coroner Dr. J. H. Moore told the six-man jury:

"You are asked to inquire into the possibility of culpable negligence on the part of Harold's keepers."

"Was it negligence that enabled him to get firearms and ammunition?"

JURY'S DUTY

Dr. Moore said the jury's duty to inquire into possible negligence stemmed from the fact that Harold was "being kept in custody in a mental institution."

The coroner's instruction to the jury came as a surprise as inquests are usually concerned only with the actual cause of death.

Dr. Moore began his address with the statement: "It is alleged that one Raymond Harold, a person of unsound mind, did shoot and kill Kirby."

"In law a homicidal act by an insane person is not a criminal act. Harold is not present at this inquest. He is unfit to plead or instruct counsel to plead if he is of unsound mind."

The inquest was adjourned after formal identification of the body by Detective Robin Stewart of Saanich. A description of Kirby's injuries was given by Dr. Garth L. Walther, pathologist at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Dr. Walther told the jury that Kirby died from a hemorrhage within the heart sac. The constable's chest was punctured about one inch from the center and the bullet fractured one rib, penetrated the chest cavity, the heart sac and the heart. It punctured the left lung and lodged between the seventh and eighth ribs at the back.

FRIDAY MEETINGS

Victoria Lions Club: Noon, Empress Hotel. "Queen" and two "princesses" from Sequim Valley, Wash., and Sequim Valley Lions Club president Mat Strauss will be guests.

Noon-Hour Fire Eats House Roof

Fire gutted a utility room and ate through the roof of a modern one-storey home at 1403 Fairfield shortly before noon today.

City firemen laid 1,500 feet of hose from two hydrants. The alarm was received about 11:30 a.m. and two trucks responded.

The home is the property of D. A. Kirkland, at present in Honolulu. It was rented to an Anglican clergyman from Kamloops.

There was nobody home at the time of the outbreak.

Cause of the fire was not immediately known, but it was believed to have started from a trash burner in the utility room.

Province-Wide Dysentery Puzzles Health Officials

Provincial health officers are puzzled by a continued increase of bacillary dysentery throughout the province.

There have been 553 cases so far this year, of which 31 have occurred in Victoria, Esquimalt, Oak Bay and Saanich.

The last case reported in Victoria — a mild one — occurred last Monday.

There have been 133 cases in Greater Vancouver compared with 8 in 1959. Health officers say the disease affects persons of all ages and many have had to go to hospital.

"We do not know how it originates," an official said. "But it seems to travel from one person to another. It is not a virulent disease."

Bogus Bills Warning

RCMP warned today persons who have passed counterfeit American $20 bills in Quebec and Ontario may be moving west.

They said the bills are printed on paper that is thicker than that of genuine notes and are blurred and faded in appearance.

Away Into Space 'Very Soon Now'

Man will be in space "very soon now," a young space scientist predicted here today. Dr. R. H. Lowry, 39, who is both an engineer as well as a medical man, said: "I'll be very disappointed if I'm not up there myself."

The Canadian-born doctor heads the space medicine section, Aero Space Division, Boeing Airplane Co., Seattle.

His section works with the practical aspects of medicine in engineering design.

Dr. Lowry addressed the three-day convention of the western divisions, Canadian Anaesthetists Society today in the Empress Hotel at which more than 100 doctors were present.

Convention theme is "hypoxia," that is, lack of oxygen, which is a vital factor regarding manned space flight.

Dr. Lowry explained that oxygen in itself was not complex, but taken in consideration with space heat, vibration, toxicity and other factors in space it "is the most important thing."

"The machine is built around the man," he said, "unlike many other engineering feats."

"Man is a mixture of organic and inorganic substances, and there are no two men the same. Whereas engineers deal with facts — they have a known effect from a cause — our doctors are dealing with preventive maintenance of man in space travel."

NEEDS A TEAM

There is no one man with all the knowledge necessary for space planning and only "the team" can make space flight actual, he said.

However, there is a field of scientific action now underway which relates in the individual as much co-ordinated knowledge as possible — as in Dr. Lowry's case. He is a pilot as well as a medical man and engineer.

"The others in the team are specialists."

As a scientist, he said he had no concern with what Russia did in space as a "first."

He added "in this exotic environment, if somebody does it ahead of us, I'll wave a flag and clap my hands."

Dr. Lowry, well over six feet in height, looks like the public conception of an astronaut. "I'll see you up there," he said.

ASK THE TIMES

Q.—Was Bentinck Island the only leper colony on the Pacific Coast or was D'Arcy Island in the Strait of Georgia also used for that purpose?—J.A.

A.—Lepers were kept on D'Arcy Island from 1891 to 1923-24 when they were moved to Bentinck until lack of victims led to closure of the centre about three years ago.

Q.—Is there an inscription on the bell which rings the hours for "Big Ben"?—A.K.S.

A.—No.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve complex or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. Questions should be submitted to editors.

... HERE AND THERE ...

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

Speaking of hobbies... Stanley C. Hall tells me he has a collection of more than 200,000 cigarette cards at his home at 3200 Milgrove Street.

This type of collecting is known as cartophilily. Mr. Hall says there are 100,000 of them in Britain although the practice of giving away cards with cigarette packages ceased in the last war and has never been resumed.

Cartophilists get most of their cards from junk stores and from private collections.

"We are always hoping the manufacturers will start issuing them again," says Mr. Hall, retired Victoria bank manager.

Further to Joe Lorrimer's anecdote about giving up smoking... George Hayhoe, 939 Caledonia, claims to have found the perfect antidote: Take a pinch of snuff whenever you crave a cigarette.

He says snuff-taking has cured him of the smoking habit but doesn't know yet whether snuff itself is habit-forming.

If it is, George, you'll have to smoke a cigarette whenever you feel the craving coming on!

So many letters about Bunter the Terrible...

D'Arcy Rickard of Duncan remembers reading the Bunter stories "with a flashlight under the bedding long after the light in my room was officially out."

Jeannie Barr, RN, 5196 Rambler Road, R.R. 4, recalls both Billy Bunter and his sister Bessie who appeared in a companion girls' paper.

"Both were plump and greedy and I remember that Bessie once excused herself from work because she had housemaid's knee in the elbow," writes Miss Barr.

Alex Geddes, 1068 Tolmie, thinks these stories had much more "literary quality" than the junior fiction of today.

Festival Solo Climax At Friday's Concert

Piano and vocal classes in the Victoria Music Festival reach their climax Friday night with the honor program's summary of some of the cream of the week's performances.

A concert by award-winning singers and pianists selected by the adjudicators will only be part of the pleasure, however.

Crowning excitement will be two traditional championship competitions — for pianists, the City of Victoria Medallion, and for singers, the Rose Bowl.

Both contests promise to be the most exciting of recent years for some exceptional performers have qualified to enter.

The public should note that this concert will take place at Central Junior High School auditorium, not St. Andrew's Hall. It will start at 8 p.m. day.

RELATIONS UNCHANGED ON CHANGE

City businesses and their customers are getting along reasonably well in the exchange of U.S. coins.

A spot check of city stores today revealed no serious friction with customers over the potentially-thorny policy of discounting U.S. coins.

Canadian banks last week announced they would charge 2 per cent on coins. Banks said the move was necessary to curb an influx of U.S. coins, particularly in Eastern Canada.

In Victoria the survey showed:

1. No stores, hotels, motels, restaurants are refusing to accept the coins;
2. Most stores are discounting U.S. coins but some are accepting them at par for small purchases;
3. Some establishments are discounting neither U.S. paper nor coins but are turning them back to Americans;
4. Banks report no increase or decrease in the amount of U.S. coins handled.

Hottest Day Of Year A Lovely 69

Victoria enjoyed its hottest day of the year Wednesday, with a temperature of 69 degrees, and according to weatherman William Mackie the present beautiful weather will prevail through Friday.

"There will be clear skies tonight and sunshine Friday, with a bit of high cloud by Friday evening," he said.

The mainland was warmer than Victoria, with temperatures of over 70 degrees in the Fraser Valley, and even to Tofino, on the west coast, matched Victoria's 69 degrees.

Just 30 miles farther north, however, Estevan Point reported a chilly 51 degrees, and in Lethbridge, Alta., the overnight minimum was 12 degrees.

Temperature here at noon today was 60 degrees. Minimum tonight will be 45 degrees, and the maximum Friday will be 60 degrees along the shore, and 68 degrees in more sheltered areas.

PLANT THEM

Present weather is plenty warm enough for planting a good many flowers and vegetables, according to William Goddard, a commercial grower in Strawberry Vale.

"If the soil is light, well drained, and has a good exposure, there is no reason why it shouldn't be planted," he said. "After all, if the planting fails, you have lost a few cents worth of seed. If it is a success, you are two weeks ahead."

He said, though that it is still too early for tender materials.

"Tomatoes, for instance, are sub-tropical, and should not go in yet," he said. "After all, it's not May yet."

Hooves Clash With Base Hits In Park Pickle

City parks committee will have to decide between a horse show and a baseball doubleheader as Dominion Day attractions in Royal Athletic Park.

The dilemma occurred when Colwood Trail Riders and Victoria Amateur Baseball Association both made arrangements for using the park July 2.

The baseball group booked a Seattle club for the doubleheader and the horsemen's club booked a Washington State professional riding troupe for the clashing events.

Colwood Trail Riders have declined a suggestion by parks committee that they settle for Macdonald Park so "it looks like the committee will have to make a decision one way or the other," an official said today.

Theft of Nails, Plywood Brings 4 Months Jail

Ex-lumber yard foreman Fernand LaRoche, 1611 Denman, who pleaded guilty to stealing about $2,000 worth of plywood and nails between last Nov. 1 and April 12, was sentenced in city police court today to four months in jail.

Magistrate William Ooster noted many good factors in favor of the accused, including his co-operation with detectives investigating thefts of wood and about 100 kegs of nails from Doman Lumber Co. Ltd.

"But the object of punishment is the prevention of crime," he quoted from an Appeal Court judgment, "... and I must consider the deterrent effect on others in your position..."

Defence counsel sought a suspended sentence in view of the previously good record and many favorable character witnesses. He said restitution was made.

Saguenay Dashes to U.S. On Mercy Run

The Esquimalt-based destroyer escort HMCS Saguenay made an unscheduled dash from the Cape Flattery area to Port Angeles Wednesday with two United States seamen from the radar picket ship USS Scanner aboard.

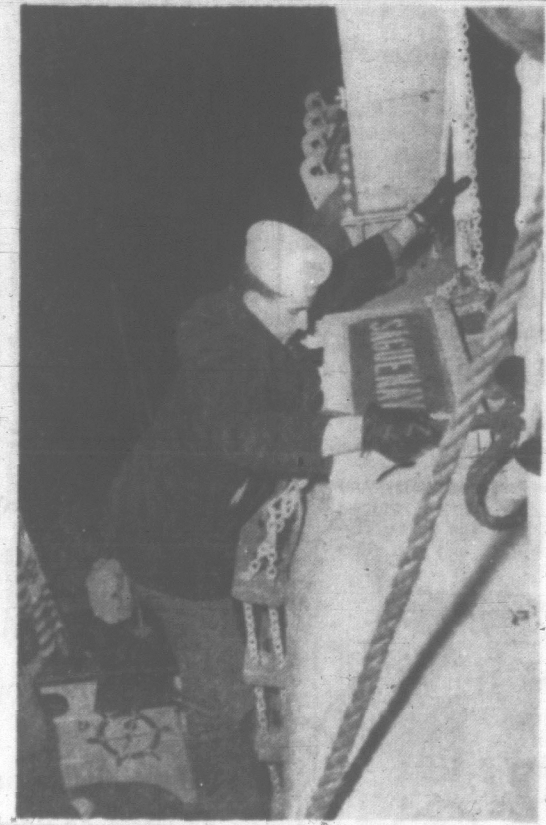

One of the men, electrical technician R. G. (Gordie) Bell of Seattle, was seriously ill.

The other, seaman Eugenio C. Peji, Philippine Islands, was put ashore because of illness in his family.

Saguenay was returning to home port after an operational cruise to the Far East in company with sister ships Ottawa and St. Laurent. Despite the fact she was almost home at the end of her mercy dash, Saguenay had to return to sea and rejoin the other destroyers, to finish off a scheduled and important squadron training exercise.

They will return to port at 10 a.m. Friday.

The commanding officer of USS Scanner, which is stationed about 250 miles west of Cape Flattery, thanked the Pacific Command with this message: "Your prompt attention and solution to our emergency problem is in highest traditions of naval service."

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Next week will be officially proclaimed as "Paint Up, Clean Up" week in Victoria.

Mayor Percy Scurrell today agreed to making the proclamation, requested by Junior Chamber of Commerce which sponsors the annual drive for sprucing up the city's appearance in both commercial and residential areas.

At least three boats from the Royal Victoria Yacht Club will take part in the opening day sailpast of Seattle Yacht Club Saturday.

They are A. J. Knowland's Wendy Lou III, W. R. Menzies' Datapa, and Gordon Inglis' Panle.

Miss Margaret Clay, former Victoria librarian, has been reappointed to the Public Library Commission of British Columbia by the provincial cabinet.

Miss Clay has served 12 years with the commission, four of them as chairman. She is now on the Vancouver Island Regional Library staff at Nanaimo.

Mrs. Nora Davy, Vancouver, will address a public meeting of Besant Lodge, Theosophical Society, in the Stobart Building lodge room at 7:45 p.m. Sunday, May 1.

Subject will be "The Festival of Easter."

A bylaw throwing barber shop hours wide open was to come before city council today for introduction.

But an anticipated protest from barbers is not expected until the next council meeting when final passage of the change will be considered.

Council's proposal to vacate its position as the arbiter of hours and closing days, followed a series of conflicting petitions in which some barbers wanted the present compulsory Wednesday closing retained and others wanted it changed to Monday.

Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtel said Wednesday that the municipality's May Queen will be chosen this year from junior high school instead of elementary school pupils because "we felt the girls should be a little older."

University Way came a step closer to reality today as the name of the streets bounding Victoria University.

Victoria Chamber of Commerce directors, moving at breakneck speed, approved a resolution submitted by the university committee to have Foul Bay Road and Flannery Road changed to University Way.

The resolution will be forwarded to Victoria city council, Oak Bay and Saanich.

It very nearly made a hole in one driver.

M. E. Walker, 1282 Kings, told police a golf ball whizzed through his car windshield on the driver's side while the vehicle was travelling on Topaz near Graham about 5 p.m. Wednesday.

Youngsters teeing-off golf balls had been seen in the area.

A Victoria man and a Sidney man have been elected to the executive of the B.C. Association of Naturopathic Physicians.

R. A. Holtum, Sidney, was re-elected president and R. M. Grant, Victoria, was named to the board of governors at the recent Northwest Naturopathic Physicians convention in Seattle.

William Hawkins, newly-appointed commissioner of the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau will install new directors at the Victoria Real Estate Board's annual meeting in the Empress Hotel, Wednesday, May 11.

The board will make a monetary presentation at this time for Victoria University Building Fund to R. B. Wilson, campaign chairman.

Victoria and Islands Branch of the Agricultural Institute of Canada will hold its annual dinner and ladies' night tonight at Holyrood House, starting at 7.

Entertainment will consist of the showing of a film, "Large Game in B.C." with a commentary by Charles Guiguet, provincial museum biologist.

The fifth of eight new district councils has been formed by the Boy Scouts Association, Greater Victoria region.

The new council, to be known as Arbutus District, will administer the Esquimalt, Victoria West and View Royal areas.

Scout groups forming this council are Esquimalt, George Vale, View Royal, Victoria West, Macaulay, St. Paul's and Queen of Peace.

Col. J. C. Cave has been named district commissioner.

U.S. Okays Sub Loan to Canada

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate armed services committee approved today the loan of a submarine to Canada for use in anti-submarine training and in creation of a Canadian submarine force.

Rear Adm. Arthur H. Taylor, the Navy's foreign assistance director, testified in support of the proposal. He said the USS Burrish, a reserve fleet submarine, commissioned in 1943, has been tentatively selected for the loan.

PM OFF TO LONDON

Solid Backing
On Apartheid

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker, backed solidly by Parliament Wednesday in his avowed hatred of racial discrimination, left today for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London and the inevitable discussion of South Africa's apartheid policy.

He goes, he said, with the belief that racial discrimination is the forerunner of tyranny and then of ultimate change by force.

He said Canada and the other Commonwealth governments should approach the South African situation by exercising "an influence of moderation" and by revealing steadiness and restraint.

"I could do the popular thing," he told the Commons. "I could denounce. I could follow the course of least resistance. But denunciation of what I hate would not achieve what we desire should be achieved—the ending of a policy that cannot succeed."

'South Africa May Drive Herself Out'

Mr. Diefenbaker also left Ottawa after hearing the contention of Opposition Leader Pearson that South Africa "may drive herself out of the Commonwealth by forcing a choice between her policies and the views of other members."

There must be a change in South African policy "or the events of recent weeks will be nothing to what will happen in the months ahead," Mr. Pearson said. "There are deep, dark forces at work which may soon sweep away the chances of any settlement based on reason and justice."

Mr. Diefenbaker's own stand for a moderate approach to the South African situation was underlined by External Affairs Minister Green, who also left Ottawa today to attend a meeting of the NATO Council in Istanbul.

"It is not the Canadian way to go to extremes of one kind or another," Mr. Green said. "The reputation we have among nations of the world is a reputation for a cool-headed attitude, and not for rushing off after this mirage or after another mirage and getting all excited and making fantastic statements."

At the time, Mr. Green was replying mostly to CCF criticisms that Canada had not been outspoken enough on the South African situation. Previously, CCF House Leader Hazen Argue had called for a formal diplomatic protest and a Canadian boycott on South African goods.

The socialist party's position in the Commons Wednesday was no less vigorous in its condemnation of apartheid but, as expressed by Harold Winch

Mr. Diefenbaker said he has no doubt that the apartheid policy and its repercussions in South Africa will be included in the informal discussions at the London conference, opening May 3.

He added: "One of the greatest hopes I have for an ultimate settlement is that South Africa has not withdrawn itself from the Commonwealth and the fact that it will be represented in London at the prime ministers' conference."

"This assures that the channels of informal communication have not been closed."

(CCF, Vancouver East) in Mr. Argue's absence, it contained few of the arguments advanced earlier.

Mr. Winch described apartheid as "not only villainous but perilous." It was tantamount to dictatorship. He called on Europeans in South Africa to "recognize the insanity of apartheid and the need to come to terms with the situation by being prepared to negotiate with the African leaders and not to jail them."

"The apartheid policy cannot be made to work without poisoning the whole continent of Africa and without causing a violent upheaval which could endanger the whole world."

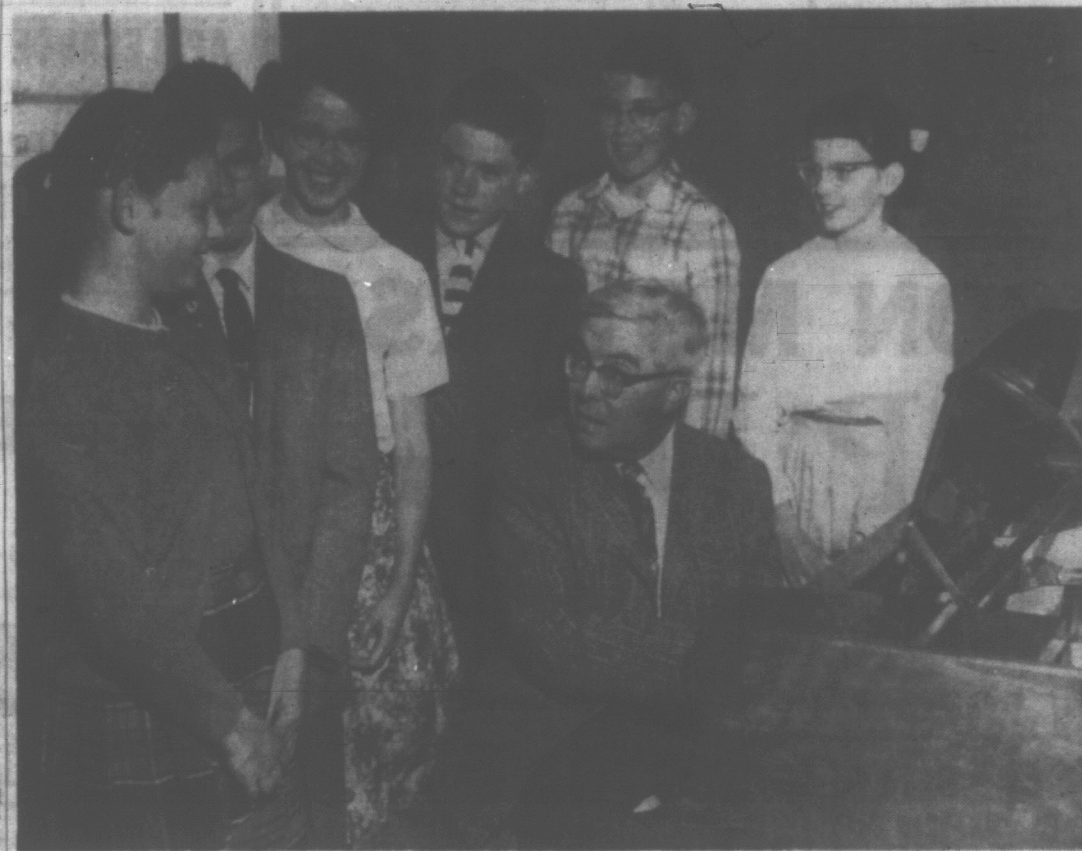

Mr. Diefenbaker, last speaker in the debate, said that after hearing all party representatives

B.C. LABOR APPEAL

Unemployed Aid
Urged on Ottawa

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor (CLC) announced today it has requested the federal government to take emergency measures to help unemployed workers and their families in the province.

Releasing a brief presented Wednesday to Labor Minister Starr, the 130,000-member federation called for a moratorium on all mortgage debts of the unemployed and urged an immediate federal program of public works.

The brief also urged education and retraining of excess or unskilled workers; continuation of unemployment benefits during the whole period of a workers' unemployment; and federal establishment of minimum rates of social assistance payments.

"Our provincial government optimistically refuses to acknowledge its 100,000 unemployed citizens," continued the brief. "Many people are losing their homes and many more are living in sub-standard conditions."

There had been a chronic state of unemployment for the last three years in B.C., and the situation was especially serious on the lower mainland.

"B.C. with its few basic export industries, is the worst example of increasing production growth with less than adequate employment growth."

"I was told by some players about conversations concerning the outcome of matches," Oldham manager Norman Dodgins said. "I immediately informed the police."

A police spokesman said a dossier on the whole matter was being prepared. "It is still under review and inquiries are proceeding," the police added.

Oldham Athletic is at the bottom of the Fourth Division in the league and must apply for re-election to the league next season. Clubs vote to decide whether the bottom team in the division stays in the competition.

Students Stone
Police; 3 Die

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Thousands of students rioted against the government today in the streets of Istanbul and Ankara and the government imposed martial law to prevent another Korea.

Three students were reported killed in Istanbul and scores wounded when police fired into their midst after tear gas, warning rifle volleys and charges by mounted police failed to break up the demonstrations.

The crowds retaliated by stoning police and several were reported injured, three seriously.

The rioting quickly spread to Ankara, the nation's capital, and there were demands that Premier Adnan Menderes resign. He cancelled a trip to a conference in Tehran because of the crisis.

The fighting in Istanbul started at Istanbul University and spread to Beyazit Square where mounted police moved in on the students only to be met by cunning and more violence.

Many youths surged forward and poked lighted cigarettes into the horses' flanks, causing many animals to plunge and rear. Some horses bolted, throwing their police riders to the ground.

One of the mounted officers who fell after being hit by a stone was trampled by the mob and injured seriously.

The police were armed with pistols and tommyguns but eyewitnesses said they held their fire until the students began stoning and trampling them.

There were cries of "Freedom! Freedom!" and "Murderous police!" Others screamed:

PREMIER MENDERES
... asked to quit

"Menderes resign!" "Government resign!"

The students also shouted slogans of approval for Koran youth who died in riots which led to the resignation of President Syngman Rhee.

Carried Pictures of Kemal Ataturk

The students streamed out of Istanbul University, formed into two large groups and began a march from old Istanbul up Ataturk boulevard toward the Asiatic side of the city.

They carried Turkish flags and pictures of Kemal Ataturk, founder of the Turkish republic. Police prevented the students from crossing the Golden Horn into the modern part of Istanbul by raising the drawbridges there. The Golden Horn is a tributary of the Bosphorus Strait which separates European Istanbul from Asiatic Istanbul.

As evening fell, police cars with loudspeakers went through the city urging people to close their shops and businesses and go home and to stay indoors.

The martial law regulations imposed a rigid curfew, banned public meetings and closed coffee houses, beer bars, taverns, theatres, movies, casinos and other public places. Schools were closed for three days.

The student riots were directed specifically against newly-strengthened parliamentary investigative powers which give pro-government committees powers to investigate and arrest members of the opposition.

Many of the committees' powers were thought by the students to usurp the judiciary and the military.

KIRBY FUND
PASSES $5,000

Citizens' donations to Mrs. Dorothy Kirby, widow of Saanich Cons. Robert Kirby, soared over $5,000 today and were still coming in strong.

The officer was shot by a mental patient during a hunt for the man Sunday night and was buried with full police honors Wednesday. (See page 30.)

Money given by sympathetic citizens of Greater Victoria will supplement a $5,000 insurance policy and $230 monthly pension from Workmen's Compensation Board to provide for Mrs. Kirby and four small children.

Little League Baseball officials announced that all proceeds from Sunday games at Little League Park and Layritz Park would be donated to the fund.

Students of Royal Oak High School have volunteered to take a collection for the fund, and a special benefit day Saturday is planned by Nick Grabas, of Island View Beach resort, site of go-cart racing.

Proceeds from the event and from a Sunday draw on a go-cart will be given to Mrs. Kirby.

SPECIAL TIMES FEATURE

The Story Behind South Africa

In this, the second of four articles on South Africa, a veteran AP foreign correspondent recalls the days of the discovery of gold and of the Boer War.

BY LYNN HEINZERLING
JOHANNESBURG (AP) — South Africa is celebrating 50 years of union this year but only a fifth of the population has anything to celebrate.

Three million whites can look around them and see a nation pulsating with economic vigor, abounding in gold, diamonds, coal and a black labor force to mine them.

But looking out from their drab and strictly segregated surroundings 12,000,000 Negroes, Indians and colored peoples of mixed races see constant discrimination and no future.

Fifty years of union for them has meant an improved literacy rate and a gradual move toward the white man's civilization. But with these have come strict segregation and tighter controls on movement.

Traditionally kraals. Slightly more than a third of the 10,000,000 Negroes live in their traditional kraals in reserves, another third on the farms of white farmers, the remainder in shabby and rigidly demarcated townships around the cities and towns.

The Union of South Africa became a reality in 1910. It joined the two British colonies of Cape Province and Natal with two Boer republics, Orange Free State and Transvaal. That followed more than a century of uneasy rivalry between British and Dutch settlers which finally exploded in the Boer War, 1899-1902.

This was a bitter struggle in the veldt. It left a legacy of hate and suspicion which the Boers, or Afrikaners, never have been able to suppress completely. They still talk of the concentration camps erected by the British for Boer prisoners. They tell of farms burned, and cattle slaughtered needlessly.

And now with Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd recovering from two bullet wounds inflicted by an assassin of English descent, there is one more black mark in the book.

Broadly, the causes of the Boer War lay in huge gold deposits discovered in the Transvaal near the close of the 19th century and in British determination to unify the sprawling, unwieldy administrations of the two British colonies and the Boer republics.

The discovery of gold on Witwatersrand (White Water Ridge) brought hordes of eager Britons and foreigners into the Transvaal, dominated by Paul Kruger, president of the South African Republic as it was known then.

His republic's pastoral economy was being disturbed. The gold mines were becoming the focus of British and international finance. Kruger recognized the danger to his republic and took drastic restrictive measures.

When peace came, the treaty contained no safeguards for the overwhelming black masses in the country. In fact, the British backed away from the relative leniency
